Soviet Renews Attacks; Finns Predict Early End of Battle

Invaders Suffer Heavy Losses, Helsinki Report Says

LINE IS HOLDING

Reporter Finds No Indication of Broken Mannerheim Defenses

Helsinki.—Violent Russian onslaughts against the Mannerheim line in the furiously-contested Summa sector are continuing, the Finnish high command announced today, despite heavy losses by the invaders which included 1,080 men and 72 tanks.

The 72 tanks, which the army said were destroyed yesterday, represented the greatest batch of these mechanical monsters since the war began Nov. 30. In addition, another tank was reported destroyed in the Kuhmo sector.

Infantry, tanks, artillery and warplanes combined to continue the steady pounding of the line in the Summa sector, army advisers said, at the same time vigorous attacks were carried out against other isthmus positions and northeast of Lake Ladoga.

BY THOMAS F. HAWKINS On the Mannerheim Line, Summa Sector.—Confident Finnish officers declared today the power of the red army's infantry attacks was waning and predicted an end soon to the battle on this front, now 11 days old.

Although Soviet Russia has thrown her greatest offensive might into her effort to crack the Mannerheim line here, it still is intact as far as I could observe.

Within a mile and a half of Summa, pivotal point of the Soviet offensive, where I visited Finnish positions in a tour of the front, foot and by sled, I found no indication that the Finns' steel-and-concrete line had been pierced.

In Moscow, however, a Russian communique reported 16 Finnish fortifications captured. This, apparently, was in addition to 13 "artillery forts" which the Russians previously had reported captured and which the Finns denied had been taken.

The Russian onslaughts continued with infantry attacking under the protection of artillery barrages which rained shells at a rate of almost two a second.

Believe me, "I'm tired." But, said a Finnish commandeer, "tiredness on the Russian side is apparent." Despite such novel equipment as steel shields and tanks which spit flaming naptha, he said Soviet troops were protected inadequately from Finnish fire and easier to stop than earlier in the battle.

"The Soviet high command," he said, describing the fighting, "seems definitely to have counted on a surprise attack in the Summa sector."

"The enemy is using the best of all the means at its disposal, not only heavy artillery, but also a great amount of bombing planes in conjunction with many planes, armored sledges and armor-sheltered infantry."

"Infantrymen even atop tanks are dropping off at intervals to fight."

"There has been no chance to count enemy losses, but last Friday on a 300-foot stretch 150 Russians were killed by our first line. The total killed has been many thousands of Russians."

"Shot From Behind"

"The Russians have been given huge amounts of vodka to drink before fighting. We have found kegs of it on the battlefield. My men saw for sure one day Soviet shot from behind, we believe by political troops firing the fight."

Officers on the Finnish front lines declare Soviet military planes have had little influence on the tide of

BULLITT ARRIVES BY CLIPPER

William Bullitt, American ambassador to France, is shown disembarking from a trans-Atlantic clipper plane at Baltimore, followed by Cornelius E. Bullitt, secretary to the American embassy in Paris. Bullitt said he would return to France after conferring with President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

Allies are Sending Heavy Forces to Near Eastern Zone

30,000 Australian and New Zealand Troops Arrive in Egypt

Istanbul.—Advices reaching Istanbul placed at 30,000 the number of Australian and New Zealand soldiers who arrived today in Egypt.

Foreign military observers said that carefully-checked figures indicated the British-French forces in the Near East totaled at least 570,000 men.

Sources close to the allied military missions here said that General Maxime Weygand planned to have 1,000,000 men in French-ruled Syria soon.

Such masses of manpower led Turks, both in and out of official life, to express belief that war was coming to the Near East.

Foreign observers were of the opinion that the potential seriousness of Rumania's situation also was underscored by the troop concentrations. Germany wants more of Rumania's oil; French-British pressure is demanding that Bucharest refuse.

(Rumanian sources in London reported today that a reply designed to reassure Britain over Rumania's oil control measures was being sent from Bucharest in response to British inquiries.)

(At the same time the Rumanian reply was said to be such that her relations with Germany would not be endangered, since King Carol's government is determined to walk the tight-rope of neutrality and continue business with the belligerents.)

(These London sources said they understood German pressure on Bucharest was slackening, in fear of driving Rumania into the allies.)

Michigan Governor Is Urged to Remove Warden From Office

Marquette, Mich.—A demand that Marvin L. Coon be removed as warden of the Northern branch prison here is to be delivered to Governor Luren D. Dickinson tomorrow by a representative of the Upper Peninsula Republican County Committee Officers' association.

Meeting here Saturday, delegates from 10 of the 15 upper peninsula counties unanimously endorsed Earl Case, Houghton county lumberman, for the wardenship and voted to demand immediate action from the governor on the question of Coon's removal.

Coon, a Democrat, has been under fire from Republican sources since the attempted escape of four long-term convicts last September. All were recaptured after taking Coon and three other state officials as hostages on a harrowing ride across the upper peninsula.

Sheboygan Burglary Results in 4 Arrests

Sheboygan.—Three Sheboygan brothers and the wife of one of them have been bound over to circuit court for trial in connection with the $5,000 burglary of the William McMullen jewelry store here last Dec. 30.

August Kunstman, 20, charged with the burglary, was placed under $3,000 bond.

His brothers, William, 19, and Christ, 27, placed under $3,000 bond each, and Christ's wife, Amber, whose bond was fixed at $500, were charged with receiving and concealing stolen property.

Labor Board Is Sustained In Decision

Supreme Court Upholds Order Directing Re-Employment of Seamen

RULING REVERSED

No Dissent Announced in Opinion Delivered by Justice Black

Washington.—The Supreme court sustained today a labor board order directing the Waterman Steamship Corporation of Mobile, Ala., to offer re-employment, with back pay, to a group of seamen the board contended were discharged after changing their membership from an A. F. of L. to a C. I. O. union.

Justice Black delivered the opinion that reversed a ruling in favor of the company by the fifth federal circuit court. No dissent was announced.

After reviewing the evidence, Justice Black said "there can be no doubt of the substantial support for the board's finding that the crews (and two other men) all lost their jobs because of C. I. O. affiliation and activities."

Black said that in the labor relations act congress provided that "the findings of the board, as to the facts, if supported by evidence, shall be conclusive."

Would Guard Powers "It is of paramount importance," he asserted, "that courts not encroach upon this exclusive power of the board if effect is to be given to the intention of congress to apply an orderly, informed and specialized procedure to the complex, administrative problems arising in the solution of industrial disputes."

The labor board said the men had been discharged because they joined a union "disrespectful" to the company and that this violated the national labor relations act.

In reply, the company said the men had signed for one voyage only, which had ended, and that their two ships were to be laid up for repairs. It was explained that when the ships resumed operation members of the American Federation of Labor were employed under a contract calling for filling vacancies from that organization.

Set Aside Sentences The court, in another case, set aside death sentences of four Florida Negroes in an opinion which said "the exalted power of some governments to punish manufactured crime dictatorially is the handmaid of tyranny."

Condemning procedure employed by Florida officials in obtaining confessions, Justice Black said for the high court:

"No higher duty, no more solemn responsibility, rests upon this court, than that of translating into living law and maintaining this constitutional shield deliberately planned and inscribed for the benefit of every human being subject to our constitution—of whatever race, creed or persuasion."

Reviewing the record in the case, Black said the four Negroes sentenced to death for the slaying of Robert Darcy, a white man, May 13, 1933, at Pompano, Fla., had been "subjected to interrogations" for five days under circumstances "such as to fill petitioners with terror and frightful misgivings."

Latvia, Estonia Fearing Crisis

Finns Interested in Reports Two Nations Growing Restive

Helsinki.—Finnish leaders showed intense interest in reports reaching Helsinki today stating that Latvia and Estonia were growing restive under their new military agreements with Soviet Russia and possibly were approaching a crisis in their relations with Moscow.

The Finns were watching particularly military developments across the gulf of Finland.

General Berkins, chief of the Latvian army, was reported to have gone to Estonia to negotiate with General Johan Laidoner, commander-in-chief of the Estonian army, in connection with cooperation to strengthen the national defenses of the two states.

News dispatches reaching Finland said that a possible new crisis in the relations of the two Baltic states with Moscow was hinted at recently in a radio address by President Karl Ulmanis of Latvia, who declared publicly that "if a decisive emergency occurs our entire nation is ready to take up arms."

It was asserted that visitors to Finland from Latvia and Estonia corroborated the general belief here that increasing Soviet pressure was causing widespread restlessness and popular dissatisfaction with the military agreements signed by these countries with Moscow last fall.

Russia won concessions last fall from Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania to establish military and naval bases on their soil. Failure to gain similar concessions from Finland led to the Russian-Finnish conflict.

Fuel Shortage Bans

Hot Baths in Denmark

Copenhagen.—Denmark's royal family, along with Danish subjects, waived the luxury of hot baths today because of the coal shortage.

The curtailment in fuel imports, which has occasioned drastic heating restrictions for several days, finally chilled the palace boilers.

Restaurants, taxed with orders for hot broth, comforted patrons with blankets.

Reopen Post Office Where Lincoln Held First Government Job

New Salem, Ill.—The county post office where Abraham Lincoln held his first government job was reopened today with elaborate ceremony as a new memorial to the Civil War president.

The little known story of Lincoln's humble role as a $25 a year rural postmaster was retold to hundreds gathered in this little log cabin hamlet where the emancipator got his start as a politician and statesman.

Thousands of letters, most of them for collectors seeking the "Lincoln's New Salem" cachet, were sent to the office for the formal dedication of the log building by Postmaster General James A. Farley.

"In this age of dictatorship and government by cruel violence, it is heartening to recall that Abraham Lincoln was a product of democratic government," Farley declared in a prepared address. "His rise to eminence and immortality in the annals of statecraft would have been impossible under any other system."

Lincoln was postmaster of New Salem for three years—from 1833 to 1836. He augmented his postal earnings of $25 to $30 a year by clerking, harvesting, surveying and other odd jobs. His postal receipts he kept in an old blue sock tucked away under his hardwood desk.

Slim Chance for Early Union of Labor Factions

Associates Believe Lewis Giving Most Attention To 1940 Race

Washington.—Despite John L. Lewis' dramatic re-statement of his ideas for labor peace, associates in the C. I. O. expressed belief today that his 1940 plans centered on the presidential campaign rather than with the American Federation of Labor.

The big, booming boss of the C. I. O., the United Mine Workers and Labor's Non-Partisan League is known to be vitally interested in political and economic issues wrapped up in the party platforms—taxes, domestic economy, foreign policy, and unemployment relief.

His proposal which he said would result in immediate labor peace was made Saturday, embodying the suggestion that the C. I. O. and the A. F. of L. vote in convention March 15 on the question:

"Resolved, that the C. I. O. and all of its units and all of its membership shall vote to become a part of the A. F. of L. . . ."

The response of William Green, A. F. of L. president, was that Lewis should make any "serious proposals" to the joint A. F. of L.-C. I. O. peace committee created early in 1939. The committee has been convened lately.

A. F. of L. leaders turned down similar proposals from Lewis previously on the ground that conflicts between rival unions in the same field—such as maritime workers, transport workers, electrical workers and lumber workers—first should be ironed out at the conference table by members or by agreements over jurisdiction.

As a result there was little expectation in Washington that Lewis' suggestion would bring immediate results.

Michigan Family of 4 Killed by Gas in Home

Pontiac, Mich.—A family of four was accidentally killed by gas today in their Pontiac residence.

The victims were August Miller, 43; his wife, Augusta, 44; their son, Otto, 21, and their daughter, Erna, 19.

Coroner J. Lee Voorhees said death was caused by asphyxiation. The victims apparently died in their sleep. The bodies were not found until noon. The coroner said the gas apparently came from a furnace.

Norris Suggests Extension Of 'Moral Embargo' to All Goods Sold to Russia, Japan

Washington.—Senator Norris (R-Neb.) suggested today that "the administration's moral embargo" against warlike sales to Japan and Russia be extended to all goods.

In addition, he said, American citizens might well cease buying any products from the two countries, which he described as "barbarous."

Norris told reporters that he probably would fight in the senate tomorrow the proposed $100,000,000 increase in capital of the Export-Import bank, making possible new loans to Finland and China.

Such a proposal would commit the government officially, he declared, and might lead to involvement abroad.

Norris, one of three senators who opposed the resolution to expedite Finnish bond issues here, said that it would "perfectly justifiable" for

Woman Killed, 2 Injured in Head-on Crash

Cars Collide on Highway 10 Near Readfield This Morning

FOUR ARE DROWNED

Accidents Claim 12 Lives In State and Upper Michigan

One woman was killed and two persons were injured in a head-on collision on Highway 10 a half mile east of Readfield, Waupaca county, at 10:10 this morning.

Automobile accidents and fires claimed 11 other lives in Wisconsin and upper Michigan during the weekend, including four persons who drowned in the plunge of their car into a canal, according to the Associated Press.

Mrs. H. A. Linstedt, about 62, route 1, Larson, was killed outright when cars driven by her husband and Miss Laverne Habeck, route 3, Appleton, crashed near Readfield. Miss Habeck was taken to St. Elizabeth hospital and her condition was reported favorable this afternoon. Linstedt was taken to the Community hospital, New London, where x-rays were taken to determine whether she suffered internal injuries.

Waupaca county sheriff's department was investigating the accident this afternoon. It was reported that ice on the highway probably caused the crash. Linstedt was driving west and Miss Habeck east when the collision occurred. Earl Polzin, Waupaca county patrolman, said.

Minor Accidents A car driven by Charles Hopfensperger, 35, 178 River drive, was damaged about the rear end in an accident involving a truck driven by Henry Herzog, 26, Sheboygan, on S. Memorial drive about 7:45 this morning. Both machines were headed north and the Hopfensperger car had stopped when the collision occurred, according to police.

A car and a truck were involved in a minor collision at 7 o'clock Sunday evening, Emma Jane Dake, 36, 1601 S. Outagamie street, was driving north on Durkee street and Ferdinand Traums, 34, Marshallfield, was driving a truck west on Washington street when the collision occurred. It was reported to police. The Dake car was damaged.

Another car and truck were damaged in a collision shortly before noon Saturday. Donald Tiedt, 16, route 2, Black Creek, was driving west on Packard street, and Art Hietpas, 21, route 3, Appleton, was driving a truck south on Story street when the accident occurred at the intersection, police reported.

Cars driven by Lester Schultz, 24, 230 S. Allen street, and Edwin Mushinski, 21, 1217 S. Madison street, collided at the intersection of S. Madison and S. Washington streets, according to police.

New Outbreaks in Northern Ireland

Armory Raided: Demands Renewed for 'Re-Establishing' Irish Republic

Belfast, Northern Ireland.—Resentment of the Irish republican army generated by Great Britain's hanging of two of its members burst forth during the week-end in rioting and a raid on an armory, and was accompanied by a demand for "re-establishing" the Irish republic.

About 2,000 I. R. A. sympathizers battled club-wielding police with bottles, stones and bricks in an hour of bitter street-fighting yesterday. Scores were injured and 20 arrested.

Despite a ban on demonstrations the I. R. A. sympathizers attempted to hold a meeting in the falls road area of Belfast, and police charged them.

Police also broke up a meeting in the nationalist area of the city of Armagh. Copies of a government proclamation forbidding meetings to discuss the execution of two Irishmen in Birmingham last week for a bombing-murder were torn down in several parts of Armagh county.

The nationalist, including the outlawed, extremist I. R. A., favor ending British rule over the six northern counties of Ireland which form Northern Ireland (Ulster).

Between 30 and 100 rifles were reported taken by a group of men identified as Irish republican army members in a raid on the Ballyknish military camp in County Down, Northern Ireland Saturday night.

7 Survivors Tell How Vessel Sank: 300 Dead

Foochow.—Seven survivors straggled into Foochow today with a story of the sudden death of 300 men, women and children when a 100-ton coastal steamer was blown to bits after striking a mine at the mouth of the Min river.

The explosion occurred on the night of Jan. 26 as the vessel steamed for Foochow packed to the rails with passengers. They included 100 Chinese students, both boys and girls, of foreign mission schools in various parts of China who were coming to spend the Chinese New Year's celebrations with their parents.

As far as is known, the seven who reached here today were the only survivors.

Expect Third Term Backing For Roosevelt

DIES AT MADISON

Madison.—F. A. W. Zeratsky, 59, (above), secretary to former Governor Philip F. LaFollette from 1925 to 1938, died today while en route to a Madison hospital after suffering a heart attack. Zeratsky was stricken in his office on E. Washington avenue. Henry Williams, an assistant at the offices of the National Progressives of America, started for the hospital with Zeratsky in the latter's car, but he was dead when they arrived.

Coalition With Progressives Is Being Advocated

Badger Slate Likely to Swing to Farley if Roosevelt Won't Run

BY JOHN WYNGAARD Wisconsin Rapids.—Strong hints that a coalition with Progressives will be welcomed, and a withering scorn for the Democratic Party Organization of Wisconsin which has denounced their leadership, key-noted the comments of Democratic organization stalwarts who gathered here today to nominate a slate of Democratic convention delegates pledged to support President Roosevelt for a third term.

These things stood out as significant as the Democratic regulars met today:

1. Practically every leader of consequence talks of getting the Democrats and the Progressives together, with the implied purpose of re-electing Senator Robert M. LaFollette and inducing Progressives in return to pitch in to help elect a Democrat to the governorship.

2. The presence of Leo T. Crowley, FDIC head and No. 1 Wisconsin New Dealer, and the fact that he spoke warm praise of National Committeemen C. E. Broughton of Sheboygan, in the minds of many meant that Gustave J. Keller of Appleton and his Democratic insurgents, despite their apparent numerical strength, have still to make

17 Autos, Truck Pile Up in Crash

One Person Killed and Seven Injured North Of Chicago

Chicago.—A pileup of 17 automobiles and a truck on the slick pavement of Highway 41 north of Chicago late last night left one motorist dead and seven others injured today.

The dead man was Eugene Roscinski, 24, of Highland, Ill. He was riding with Armando Lenzi of Highland, whose car skidded to start the jam, the Morton Grove county highway police reported.

Lenzi's car and one driven by William Webster of suburban Evanston collided. The other machines, north and southbound, slammed into the wreckage one by one when their drivers were unable to stop. Lenzi suffered a possible skull fracture. None of the others appeared to be injured seriously.

The pileup, which the police said was the worst they could remember, occurred a quarter-mile south of the Lake county line near Northbrook village. Three police squads required three hours to untangle the smashed cars.

Among the drivers were Edward Platko, truck driver for the Interstate Trucking company, Milwaukee, and R. C. Smith of Racine, Wis., neither of whom was injured. All the other drivers and passengers were of Chicago and suburbs.

Three Masked Men Get $671 in Kenosha Raid

Kenosha.—Three masked and armed men obtained $671 in a hold-up of the Eagles club here early today. They forced Joseph Tracht, a bartender, to open the club's safe and then locked Tracht and another man in the boiler room.

Keller Faction Scored at Wisconsin Rapids Meet

LAUD NEW DEAL

Crowley Urges Democrats To Send Delegates Pledged to F.D.R.

Wisconsin Rapids.—Wisconsin Democrats met today in a convention which National Committeeman Charles E. Broughton, Sheboygan, predicted would endorse a third term for President Roosevelt.

A pre-convention rally last night heard Leo T. Crowley, formerly of Madison, retiring chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, urge support of delegates to the national Democratic convention who are "truly in favor of the things Roosevelt stands for."

Other speakers criticized the Democratic Party Organization of Wisconsin, self-styled "liberal" group which recently named its own slate of Roosevelt delegate candidates; the DPOW's chairman, Gustave J. Keller, Appleton, and the chairman of its Milwaukee county unit, Edward F. Curry.

William B. Rubin, Milwaukee mentioned in pre-convention talk as a possible candidate for delegate-at-large, described the DPOW as an organization of "camouflaged Democrats bent on short-circuiting Democracy in Wisconsin."

Praises Broughton Crowley, predicting a "real line of demarcation" between conservatives and Roosevelt forces in the delegate election in April, declared that "Broughton deserves the support of the liberal Democrats of Wisconsin."

Crowley, in a statement to the convention today, said: "I can assure you from my own long experience that the leaders of our party and of the administration in Washington, when they have business to transact with party representatives within a state, will deal only with the regularly elected leaders of a state organization, usually routing all business through the national committeeman. The national committeeman is likewise the only person authorized to call a meeting for the selection of delegates to the party's national convention."

Broughton, after receiving an ovation from the assemblage, praised President Roosevelt and discussed recent strife among Wisconsin Democrats over patronage in the state.

"I will be handling the patronage as president as long as Roosevelt is president until you send a senator to Washington to handle it for you," he said.

Broughton read a letter from the census bureau which he said had cleared him of "groundless" allegations that census personnel appointed in an eastern Wisconsin district had been incompetent.

A special train brought delegates from Milwaukee and points en route.

Farley's Telegram

A telegram from James A. Farley, national Democratic committee chairman, praising the record of the Democratic party in Wisconsin, was read today at the convention.

Charles E. Broughton of Sheboygan, Democratic national committeeman, read the message before about 800 delegates. Addressed to Broughton, it said in part:

"I am sure that the results of your conference will be most helpful to the success of the Democratic party in the future, not only in your state but in the nation."

"You and those associated with you have always rendered splendid service to the Democratic cause. In 1931 I first visited Wisconsin in the interests of the then Governor Roosevelt of New York, and down through the years I have had a very close relationship with you and

Henry, Former State Treasurer, Reveals He Has Joined G.O.P.

Jefferson, Wis.—Robert K. Henry, former state treasurer elected as a Democrat, today confirmed reports that he had affiliated with the Republican party and would be one of the Jefferson county delegates attending the Republican state meeting in LaCrosse Feb. 19.

In the last state election primary, Henry ran as a Republican-Democratic coalition candidate for governor. He was nominated on the Democratic ticket and then withdrew in favor of Julius P. Heil, Republican nominee, who was elected.

Henry would not say whether he would affiliate with the G.O.P. or would be a candidate for an office. "I am not concerned with public office," he declared, "because the party is an end in itself in the ranks of the Republican party."

He added that he felt the Republican party was "the only vehicle by which I can lend my aid in restoring true democracy and sound governmental principles in Wisconsin and the nation."

Henry was elected state treasurer in 1932 and was the only member of his party to succeed himself in any of the constitutional state offices in the election of 1934.

New York Paper Says Farley Sure F.D.R. Won't Run

Republicans Open Election Campaign on Lincoln's Birthday

New York — (AP) — The World-Telegram says that "Postmaster General Farley has told Mr. Roosevelt he is strongly opposed to a third term" and that "in reply he (Farley) has received from the president's staff the assurance that Mr. Roosevelt will not be a candidate."

The World-Telegram's story continues: "Mr. Farley's intimates said Mr. Farley agreed to the use of his name on the Massachusetts primary only after deciding to take Mr. Roosevelt's word that he had no intention of being a candidate for the third term."

Washington — (AP) — Touching off a week of widespread political activity, Republican orators utilized Abraham Lincoln's birth anniversary today to sound the opening of their election campaign.

Former President Hoover will lead the speakers, giving a radio address from Omaha (NBC) at 8 p. m. C. S. T. Several potential candidates for the presidential nomination will deliver addresses expressing their views on current issues.

Among the orators will be Senator Taft of Ohio at Greensboro, N. C., District Attorney Dewey of New York at Portland, Ore., National Chairman John Hamilton at New York, Senator Bridges of New Hampshire at Oklahoma City, and Senator Lodge of Massachusetts at Brooklyn.

Governor James of Pennsylvania and Stassen of Minnesota will join Governor Dickinson of Michigan in a rally at Grand Rapids, Mich., with Vandenberg presiding.

Vandenberg, in a major speech at St. Paul Saturday, outlined a program headed by encouragement of business—which was generally accepted as his platform for the presidential nomination.

Alf Landon, the 1936 Republican standard-bearer, contested Lincoln with Hitler and Stalin in an address last night at Springfield, Ill.

"Hitler and Stalin force the state to live and die for them," he said. "Lincoln lived and died for the state."

But the Lincoln day festivities were not confined to Republicans. On the program with Landon was Postmaster General Farley, who entered the Democratic presidential primary in Massachusetts on Saturday.

"Being a first-class political leader," Farley said, "Lincoln had the wisdom to call in and consult all sorts and kinds of men."

Farley declined to tell reporters at Springfield whether he had become an active presidential candidate by his letter authorizing Massachusetts party leaders to file a slate of convention delegates pledged to his support.

Varied Interpretations
Politicians in Washington were divided over the meaning of Farley's move. It received these interpretations:

1. That the president had let Farley know he would not seek a third term and had left the field open.

2. That the Democratic chairman was trying to hold the Massachusetts delegation for Mr. Roosevelt if the latter should decide to run.

3. That Farley wanted to obtain a bloc of delegates in order to strengthen his already powerful voice at the convention, whether or not he pressed his own candidacy.

It was reported that Vice President Garner had urged Farley and Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) to become active participants in the presidential campaign. Wheeler was reported to have replied that he would not oppose Mr. Roosevelt.

It was learned that Senator Donahoe (D-Ohio), he would not enter the Ohio primary if Donahoe became a "favorite son" candidate.

Heil Plan to Aid Dairying Differs With Board Ideas

State Agriculture Body Thinks Farmers Should Initiate System

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—Governor Heil's plan to aid sales of Wisconsin butter and cheese through a system of privately financed Wisconsin warehouses and dispensaries elsewhere in America varies considerably from the program envisioned by his own state board of agriculture to attack the distribution problem in the Wisconsin dairying industry, it was learned today.

While the governor has divulged some of the details of his program of a marketing system to be financed by private investors—although he maintains that it will be a non-profit corporation—the state board of agriculture's policy, as expressed in informal discussions at many meetings, is that the marketing problem should be approached through a co-operative sales system initiated by the farmers themselves.

Essential difference is that the governor's plan would superimpose a corporate structure on the dairy industry from outside. The state farm officials prefer, it is believed, to work more slowly, from the ground up.

Consulted Authorities
Although the governor consulted state farm authorities early last year on the subject, the specific project which he recently disclosed he has not discussed with members of the board of agriculture, it has been learned.

The governor and board members last year consulted in a general way on the need for a central marketing system to dispose of state dairy products in the rest of the country. No formal program was decided upon, however.

State law authorizes co-operatives, and authorizes the state department of agriculture and the state college of agriculture to aid them, both in organization and technical work. State policy for years has been one of encouragement to cheese factory co-operatives. Today of the 1900 state cheese production units, 100 are co-operatively owned and managed.

State officials contemplate that eventually regional groups of co-operative units will federate into larger production groups, groups large enough to maintain storage warehouses, and to market the joint production in a more effective manner than is afforded by strictly individual effort. In a general way such groups as the Wisconsin Cheese Producers' federation and the Wisconsin Milk pool have attained such status.

State Co-operative
The larger program, however, in the mind's eye of the state officials, also contemplates a single state sales co-operative which would be strong enough and big enough to make an impression on the national market. Even the relatively large regional federations are not strong enough to make a dent in the market picture, particularly in competition with great private buyers corporately owned and well financed.

One distinct advantage to which state officials can point in the co-operative plan of production organization is the fact that co-operatives are able to borrow up to 80 per cent of their warehouse receipts from the federal land bank. While Governor Heil's privately incorporated warehouses would have to depend on "public spirited citizens" to back warehouse receipts, and according to the governor, without a prospect of a profit, the co-operative would be able to borrow at nominal terms to provide capital.

Capital is the most essential ingredient in either the governor's, or the state board's own plan, it has been pointed out. Farmers need their money immediately, and when they ship their product to the warehouses of either system, they will have to be assured of cash value for their receipts.

Would Combine Plans
Some state officials believe that both plans can be joined, with the production organization being established on a co-operative basis.

LANDON, FARLEY MEET IN CHICAGO

En route to Springfield, Ill., for Lincoln day observances, Alf Landon (left), Republican presidential nominee in 1936, and James A. Illinois Ballot May Force FDR to Indicate Plans

Hamilton Fish, Jr., Says He Must Withdraw or Admit Candidacy

Springfield, Ill. — (AP) — Hamilton Fish, Jr., Republican congressman from New York said in an interview here it would be definitely apparent in two weeks whether President Roosevelt is a candidate for third term re-election.

"President Roosevelt's petition has been filed asking that his name be printed on the Illinois ballot for the presidential preferential primary and the last day for withdrawal is two weeks hence," Fish said.

"Unless President Roosevelt directs that his name be taken off the Illinois ballot, he is definitely a candidate for a third term."

Supporters of Fish have entered his name in the Illinois presidential primary. The New Yorker said the action was taken without his consent.

"I am grateful for their interest," he added, "but I shall not enter the primary until I have given serious consideration to the desires of the people of this state."

Fish spoke in Jacksonville yesterday and was scheduled to make talks here and in Chicago today.

It will require long years of promotion and state subsidy, possibly, to organize the state's highly individualized dairy industry into a central co-operative unit, state authorities concede. Even those regional producers' cooperatives which have had a high degree of success, such as the cheese federation with headquarters at Plymouth, contracts for its output to the Land O'Lakes organization, attempts little direct selling.

State officials expressed gratitude for the governor's attention to the problem, pointing out that constant publicity for the idea will encourage thinking in the cheese and butter industry.

Indiana Honors Lincoln's Mother

Simple Ceremony Held at Grave Near Lincoln City, Ind.

Lincoln City, Ind. — (AP) — A simple ceremony on a lonely hill commemorated today the most poignant experience of Abraham Lincoln in Indiana.

On the Civil War president's birthday, a little band of Hoosiers went to lay a wreath on the grave of his mother, Nancy Hanks Lincoln.

Their pilgrimage was in observance of her death of a frontier plague when Lincoln was nine and of the fourteen years of growth the emancipator spent in this state, from the time he was 7 until he was 21.

Only a low white-marble grave-stone and an old-fashioned cast-iron fence mark the burial place. But nearby, on 1,200 wooded acres, is a state park.

The pilgrimage is an annual affair of the Booneville Press club and the Indiana Lincoln Union, formed in 1926 to preserve relics of Lincoln's Hoosier years.

Cr. Richard Lieber of Indianapolis, consultant of the national park service and chairman of the executive committee of the Lincoln Union, had charge.

The program was brief—songs by school children and a few talks. Lawrence F. Crosbie of Indianapolis, chief clerk to the secretary of state, said Lincoln's mother was fortunate in that "her dreams of a fine, clean, loyal and loving son, a stalwart, courageous and honorable man, all came true."

Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor-General Of Canada, Dies

Succumbs After Third Operation After Fall Last Tuesday

Montreal — (AP) — Political activity halted today as the Dominion mourned the death of 64-year-old Lord Tweedsmuir, governor-general of Canada since 1935, novelist, lawyer and newspaperman.

Lord Tweedsmuir died last night in the Montreal Neurological Institute after the third operation since a fall last Tuesday. Five attending physicians said the blocking of a small artery in the brain caused him to fall, "thereby adding a concussion of the brain."

Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King recalled all his ministers who are campaigning in the coming general elections, and governmental activity throughout the Dominion was suspended.

Among hundreds of messages received by Lady Tweedsmuir was one from President Roosevelt saying he was "shocked and greatly grieved" at her husband's death.

The body of the governor-general will lie in state at Ottawa in the senate chamber before funeral services Wednesday. Burial will be in Great Britain. A special train will take the body to Ottawa tomorrow.

7 Days Of Mourning

The government proclaimed a seven-day period of public mourning beginning today.

Pending the appointment of a successor by King George VI, the governor-general's duties were taken over by the chief justice of Canada, Sir Lyman Duff.

The son of the Rev. John Master-ton Buchan, a minister of the free church, John Buchan, later to become Lord Tweedsmuir, was born in the Scottish borderland country, Aug. 26, 1875. A graduate of Oxford he was admitted to the English bar, but soon entered the publishing field. He was the author of nearly 60 volumes including biographies, histories and fiction.

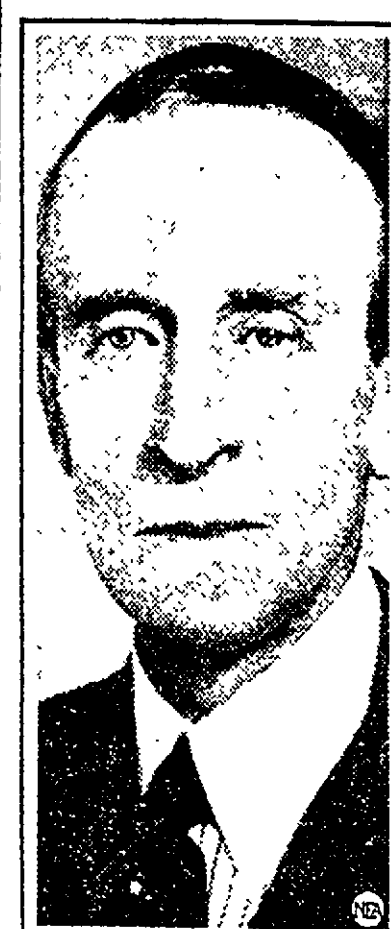

During the World War, he was a liaison officer between G.H.Q. and the British government and after the war became director of Reuters, British news agency. He was raised to the peerage in 1935 as the first baron Tweedsmuir of Elsfield after several years of government service in various capacities. The same year, he was appointed governor-general.

Little Likelihood of Peace In European Conflict Until After General Spring Move

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

New York — (AP) — Whatever else President Roosevelt's exploration of European peace prospects discloses, it undoubtedly will demonstrate that the general public of all the belligerent countries are anxious for any honorable escape from the war nobody wants.

If the undoubted presence of this sentiment were all that is necessary to achieve peace, we could have it by spring and thus avoid the terrible bloodshed which threatens as soon as good weather comes. Unfortunately, however, the thing isn't so simple as that, though many there are who think it should be.

We are now up against the argument which is as old as the human race—that a negotiated peace will only breed another war and that the conflict must go through a decision which will permit a conqueror to impose terms on the defeated. Since the president's program has been made known, both sides have announced that they won't accept a "patched-up" peace.

Stands Far Apart
If we accept the declared position of the belligerents as the Washington investigation gets under way, they are worlds apart. The Anglo-French allies are standing pat on their aims of restoring the independence of Poland, Czechoslovakia and Austria, crushing Hitlerism and eliminating any possible threat of German aggression. Nazism is equally firm for a Hitlerian peace, which is "to have and to hold."

That certainly is a tough nut to crack, although we are entitled to note that the terms set forth are the "asking prices." These presumably might be made easier in some ways, especially if the negotiations could be broadened to include a general European settlement. A peace like that would permit of a good deal of bargaining.

At best it will take a miracle-man to produce a formula which will compromise between the idealistic and the harshly practical and bring the combatants together about the conference table before the war has had a considerable run of heavy fighting. The hopeful thing about the situation is that miracle-men do crop up every now and then.

Provided Formula
We shouldn't overlook that Woodrow Wilson's 14 points provided the formula which a shattered German public was willing to accept. True, this came after some four years of slaughter and destruction, but that doesn't prove that no formula can be made to work before a lot of blood has been shed.

Herr Hitler has made it amply clear that he is most desirous of peace—his peace, of course, though there are many who believe he would be willing to make a good many concessions. Germany is in a bad way economically and financially, and already is pinched for essential supplies by the allied blockade and her failure to obtain the supplies she needs from Russia and the Balkans.

I cannot conceive of Hitler's abandoning any of his major claims, however, without first hurling his full military strength against his opponents in an effort to repair his position and turn the tables on them. That is the logic of the situation.

So it is difficult to see how at least a great spring offensive can be avoided, probably in the western theater of war. If the Nazis don't launch it, the allies likely will.

Should that offensive result in major defeat for either side, might be that peace would have a chance. The argument has been advanced that heavy loss of life would engender hatreds which would preclude the making of peace before one of the belligerents has been crushed. That might happen but not necessarily.

The public on both sides of the conflict already are enduring great hardship and privation. All the peoples involved are brave and capable of great sacrifice, but nerves do have a habit of snapping even among the hardiest folks. It strikes me that a wholesale slaughter might be the last straw which would crack the civilian morale of the country affected.

One suspects that neither President Roosevelt nor Secretary of State Hull is expecting peace in the near future. When the time does arrive, however, the Washington influence will be mighty, for no matter what Europe may say, it still looks to America for a lead whose times are hard.

The idea that lasting peace must be built on economic stability, which will receive great support in Europe when the time comes. I have talked with many statesmen over there who agree with our secretaries in this matter.

Lawrence Claims That Commissions Are Making Laws

Labor Board Members "Proclaim Right to Put Language" Into Statute

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Shall the laws of the United States be made by a congress elected by the people or by boards or commissions consisting of persons who are not elected at all? If congress omits to prescribe penalties or punishments, shall boards or commissions invent the power to impose fines on citizens?

These are fundamental rights that go to the heart of the American system of government and the average American citizen will promptly answer both questions with a feeling that it is almost superfluous to ask them.

But the record shows that congress alone does not make the laws and that boards and commissions in Washington have come so far as to pass laws which they feel are necessary without themselves being responsible to the people through the customary election process.

Thus the National Labor Relations board members are not elected to office. Congress, which is elected, delegates certain powers to boards and commissions, but it is an old rule that what is omitted from the statute should not be written in by anybody else except the congress.

Yet a shocking instance has come to light of the conception held by members of the National Labor Relations board—J. Warren Madden and Edwin S. Smith—in which they boldly proclaim the right to put language into a law that congress itself omitted. This would seem incredible were it not for the fact that it appears in black and white in the stenographic record of the proceedings of the special house committee investigating the labor board.

Cites Case

Representative Howard Smith of Virginia, Democrat, chairman of the committee, was questioning Mr. Madden, the head of the labor board, about a decision of the board to the effect that a certain company refused to hire two men who have never before been their employees. The board ruled that the reason for refusal to hire was their membership in a union and ordered the company to give the men jobs and also pay them wages for the interval of time that had elapsed between the time the men applied and the time the board made its ruling. Chairman Smith was quite willing to concede that if the two men had been employed before by this company and then had been dismissed for union activity or membership, the company could be required to "reinstated" them, but he said he did not think the word "reinstated" could be construed to mean that persons who never were employees, could be "reinstated" so to speak. Here is the colloquy in the committee hearing.

"Chairman Smith: Then you don't think that the congress, by using the word 'reinstated', confined your remedies to employees rather than to persons who had never been employed?"

"Mr. Madden: I mean to speak of that as a matter of statutory interpretation. It seems to me that when you look at the whole spirit and purpose of this act (the National Labor Relations act), and when you look at the evil of black lists, which say it is inconceivable that the congress intended should be without remedy—when you look at all those things it seems to me that the prefix 're' is in fact a matter of verbiage to control the whole spirit and purpose of this statute."

A little further on in the same day's proceedings Chairman Madden boldly proclaimed his conception of public duty as a member of the labor board to include the right to "invent" any remedy which the courts subsequently did not reject. In other words, the citizen could be punished as severely as the board wished, subject only to the possibility that a federal judiciary, now more than 50 per cent appointed under the New Deal, might check the abuse of power. Here is the quotation on invention of remedies.

Remedies

"Mr. Madden: ... You will remember that our statute, in giving us the power to order a person to cease and desist and to take affirmative action as well effective the policies of the act, does give us pretty broad power."

"Chairman Smith: And it gives you the right to constitute it as you see fit, except as some court may later come along and say that you have been mistaken?"

"Mr. Madden: Yes, what we would invent by way of remedy I take it would have to be a reason-

Lenten Thought For Today

Monday, Feb. 12. For I say . . . to every man . . . not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think. Blessed are the meek; for they shall inherit the earth. Read Matthew 5:1-12; Romans 12.

The Beatitudes make strange reading these days. They urge a spirit and way of life the strong deny and the proud ridicule. We end our reading with a sigh—"if it were true"—and on on—unblessed.

And yet—Today we remember Abraham Lincoln; his strong, sad, and his wise and healing words; his patience, his laughter through the tears of things; his selfless devotion to high cause; his tenderness for the weak and concern for the forgotten, his nobly tempered and victorious strength. Beneath his shadow war-lords are contemptible and strutting pride and power roose-step to doom. He has won the empire of a nation's love—and those who win that empire do possess the earth—not always its dust—but always its soul.

He was the third Beatitude. "Some glances of real beauty," said John Woolman, "may be seen in their faces who dwell in true meekness." That beauty shone in Lincoln's face.

Prayer: Lord of Pity and Master Light of all our Seeking, forgive us our unblessed quests which cost us so dearly, when all the while the ways of true blessedness wait for our hesitating feet and doubtful minds. Redirect us, we beseech Thee into ways of blessedness and paths of peace. Amen.

able and not an arbitrary device to remedy the situation."

The reading public can judge how reasonable or how arbitrary is the "remedy" selected by the board when it assumes the legislative power to impose fines that could amount to millions of dollars on a company which in choosing between several applicants prefers for reasons of its own certain prospective employees and rejects others. For such selection, one company was actually ordered by the labor board to pay back wages for work never done and to give the money to men who never were hired or admitted to the plant.

It is true that in the case under discussion only two persons were involved but once the principle and the precedent are established, any body in America who feels aggrieved about being rejected for a job could cite the labor board's ruling and initiate a case. This is a law or ruling established which the congress of the United States not only never sanctioned but specifically failed to sanction when it used a word that means "re-employ" instead of "employ."

U. S. Press Holds to Straight Line on Reports of Atrocities

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—Most of my letters from members of Father Coughlin's love-lobby chide the American press for failure to do right by General Franco during the Spanish civil war, the principal complaint being that the news matter and editorial comment were not properly agnostic at the atrocities of the loyalists against priests and nuns and the desecration of holy things in the early days. This is intended to suggest that the American press was in sympathy with the communists, it being held, as though there could be no argument about it, that the loyalist side was purely communistic, with no discount.

There is no need to rely on opinion, for the files will show that the atrocities were reported in the papers and that they were editorially deplored. It is my impression, however, that they caused less shock than the persecutions of the Jews of Germany, particularly the terror that followed the retributive killing of a Nazi attaché of the German embassy in Paris. It occurred to me then that we were raising a great to-do over a debacle consisting mainly of burning and looting and the confiscation of money, attended by comparatively little bloodshed, and I put this down to the fact that the world had had an exaggerated opinion of the intelligence and character of the nazis. The disgust was aggravated by the announcement of Joseph Goebbels that this revolting exhibition was but a healthy expression of the true German spirit. The world stubbornly expected better than this from the great German people.

In Spain there was a difference. In the first place, the horrors occurred in the mad early days of a complete civil war, and were by no means unilateral, as the diplomats say. They were bilateral or reciprocal and, moreover, Franco was using Mohammedans and later used Italians and Germans to attack his own people. He attacked the government, and he was identified with the church. We have learned, too, from Catholic authority that vast numbers of ignorant Spaniards had learned to hate the church during a time when the church authorities had a duty to serve them.

Absurd to Say Papers Ever Favored Communists

Of course, the communists whipped up the fury of the masses of apostate Spaniards, and I am one who never allowed personal attacks on Bill Curney of the New York Times by the civil communist, journalistic clique to impair my belief in the expose of communist influence in Madrid, which he published after he bailed out of the capital and before he was assigned to Franco's army. I believe he told the truth and that the communists of Russia ran the government after the war began, but have no opinion as to whether they were in control before the revolution broke. The intricacies of Spanish politics are such that the American public simply can't have an intelligent opinion on that.

But in view of the attacks of the communists on the American press and in view of the capitalistic nature of the publishing industry in the United States, it seems absurd to say that the American newspapers ever favored the loyalists as communists. Sympathy there may have been for democracy in Spain, and it will be remembered that fascism and nazism, both terribly abhorrent to Americans, were on Franco's side. Now the same nazis who were crusaders with Franco are engaged in the cold-blooded work, or perhaps it might better be called play—for cruelty seems to give them joy—of annihilating the whole Polish nation. They are slaughtering priests and defiling sacred places and objects, and, for the special torture of this reticent people, "seven girls, especially the good looking ones, are being deported to Germany, to the despair of their families," as Cardinal Hlond's report says. So we were right about the nazis all the time.

World Has Learned to Expect the Worst

Incidentally, although the communists circulated photographs of rows of bodies of children who were said to have been killed by Franco's bombs the same communists now applaud the slaughter of Finnish civilians, including any children who might be in the way, by Stalin's planes. They also attempt to divert as fakes the pictures sent back by American photo-

Report Earnings For Tax Purposes In Year Received

Deputy Collector Will Assist Persons in Filing Returns

In general, compensation for personal services should be reported for federal income tax purposes in the year it is received or made subject to demand, according to R. G. Mayrand, deputy collector of internal revenue. Mayrand will be in his office on the second floor of the post office from Feb. 26 to March 15 to assist persons in filing income tax returns.

Of the millions of income-tax returns filed, the vast majority are from salaried persons and wage earners whose income is derived from personal services.

Compensation credited to the account of or set apart for a taxpayer, without any substantial limitation or restriction, and which may be drawn upon by him at any time, is subject to tax for the year during which so credited or set apart, although not then actually reduced to possession.

If services were rendered during the year 1938, or even prior, for example, but the compensation was not received by the taxpayer until the year 1939, the entire amount is taxable in 1939.

The names of all employees to whom payments of $1,000 or more are made annually must be reported by employers. The information returns should be made on Form 1099, accompanied by transmittal Form 1096.

All the various types of compensation, unless specifically exempt by statute, should be included in the taxpayer's return of gross income, such as salaries, wages, fees, commissions, bonuses, tips, honorariums, prizes, awards, retiring allowances for past services, etc.

Where services are paid for in whole or in part with something other than money, the fair market value of the thing taken in payment must be included as income.

Mayor Goodland To be Candidate For Reelection

Alderman McGillan, Joseph DeBruin Also are in Mayoralty Race

Announcement was made today that Mayor John Goodland, Jr., will be a candidate for reelection in the primary race March 12.

The mayor's nomination papers were filed this morning by a committee of citizens organized to support his campaign. The committee was formed four years ago and was revived to take an active part in promoting the mayor's reelection. He has served the city in various capacities since 1930. He was first city treasurer, then served when city hall was moved to the library building in 1930. The structure then was a new building. The mayor was one of the commissioners when the city was governed under the commission form of government, as mayor in 1934 and 1935, and served as mayor since 1936 and has served continuously since then.

Opposing Mayor
Opposing the mayor in the primary election will be Alderman Lawrence McGillan, who is council representative from the Seventeenth ward, and Joseph DeBruin, 1005 S. Outagamie street. It has been rumored that nomination papers are being circulated for both Alfred C. Rule, a former mayor, and Lloyd M. Schindler, a former city engineer.

Louis Bonni, 602 E. Eldorado street, incumbent supervisor in the Second ward, will seek reelection in the primary. Nomination papers were taken out for him Saturday. He is unopposed.

There now is at least one candidate for every city post except for three county board jobs, the Fourth ward where Armin Scheuile is incumbent, the Tenth ward, where Patrick Heenan is incumbent, and the Eighteenth ward where John W. Bauer is the incumbent.

Alderman Charles J. Captain, 1208 W. Spencer street, filed nomination papers today for the aldermanic post in the Eighteenth ward. Alderman Captain is finishing his first term as a council representative.

American Legion Commander Says Lincoln Helped Make U. S. 'Hope' of Modern World

Springfield, Ill.—(AP)—Raymond J. Kelly, national commander of the American Legion, speaking at the tomb of Abraham Lincoln here today, said "our country and its people are today the hope of the civilized world because of the contribution that he made in preserving the Union."

Commander Kelly spoke to legions which made the annual pilgrimage to the tomb in Oak Ridge cemetery. The granite-spired monument within which the Civil war president's body lies beneath a polished red marble catafalque was a mecca today for thousands.

The semi-circular recess alcove, which is inscribed "Now he belongs to the ages" was flanked by floral pieces. One of the decorations—a wreath—was placed by Colonel Robert G. Kirkwood in behalf of President Roosevelt.

The legion chief speaking over a radio hookup, said members of the American Legion "stand today in the position that caused Abraham Lincoln to say that 'if we could know where we are, and what we are tending, we could better judge what to do and how to do it.'"

"It is a troubled hour in world history," Kelly continued. "One half

Wright, Former Juneau Sheriff, Is Denied Pardon

Governor Heil Also Refuses Clemency to 46 Other Prisoners

Madison.—(AP)—Governor Heil today denied a pardon to Lyall T. Wright, former Juneau county sheriff, who is serving a 15 to 30 year sentence in Waupun prison, imposed Oct. 5, 1935, for complicity in the $4,000 robbery of the New Lisbon State bank.

The governor, acting on recommendations of the pardon board, also denied clemency to 46 other state prisoners.

He took no action on the pardon pleas of seven men sentenced July 19, 1938, to terms of six months in the Milwaukee House of Corrections on charges of conspiring to operate slot machines in Waukesha county.

The men are Paul Nowatske, Mukwonago; Otto Schroeder, Waukesha; Hubert Voss, Sullivan; Edward Woodruff and Joseph Jacquet, Pewaukee; A. Joseph Martin, Delafield; and Clarence Seider, Okeshaw.

They were granted stays of commitment until March 15, 1940, to make their testimony available to the state in prosecution of Herman R. Salen, former Waukesha county district attorney. Salen was acquitted of a conspiracy charge, and a perjury charge was dropped.

The pardon board made no recommendation on their pleas.

SEEKS LENIENCY

Waukesha.—(AP)—District Attorney Scott Lowry has requested the state pardon board to grant "some degree of leniency" to seven Waukesha county men convicted in 1938 of conspiracy to violate the state gambling laws through formation of a slot machine syndicate.

The men, under sentence of six months in the Milwaukee House of Corrections, have received seven stays during trial of other cases arising from a grand jury investigation.

Lowry said he had recommended reduced sentences, fines or probation for a year, rather than full pardons.

The district attorney declared that the recommendation did not apply to Schroeder, "who, I am informed, gave no assistance to the state whatever."

UNION CASE DISMISSED

Washington.—(AP)—The labor board today dismissed a representation case filed by the textile workers union on behalf of employees of the Rock River Woolen Mills, Janesville, Wis. The board acted after the employees had voted 129 to 107 against representation by the C.I.O. union.

Sleet Endangers Traffic; Snowfall Is Thick in North

Streets are Coated With Ice as Mercury Drops This Morning

Appleton was on the southern fringe of a low pressure disturbance that brought the worst storm of the winter to the Upper Peninsula of Michigan today, paralyzing traffic across the straits of Mackinac.

Sleet that fell on the city early today, accompanied by a fairly heavy wind, turned to ice as the thermometer fell after reaching the 24-hour high at 3 o'clock this morning, 33. Drivers handled their cars gingerly on streets covered with a thin sheet of ice and buses were reported late.

Colder tonight, with fair skies and rising temperatures tomorrow, is the forecast for this vicinity issued today by the Milwaukee weather bureau. At 12:30 this afternoon, the thermometer atop the Post-Crescent building registered 26 degrees. Yesterday's high was 19.

The Michigan state ferry Chief Wawatom remained tied up at the Mackinac city dock, a train aboard it, unable to cross to St. Ignace, the Associated Press reported. The ferry Sainte Marie completed a delayed northbound trip across the straits after battling ice and snow.

Roads Open

All roads were reported open in the Upper Peninsula despite a snowfall ranging from 1 1/2 to 12 inches.

Forecaster A. J. Knarr of Chicago said snow fell in eastern Minnesota, northern Wisconsin and Michigan. There was light snow also in the northern Rocky Mountain area and eastward from the lakes to the Atlantic coast.

Illinois and Indiana, however, were abnormally warm, the temperature averaging 35 to 38 in the northern part of the two states and above 40 in the southern parts. It was generally cloudy.

Knarr said much colder weather would move down as the "low" moved eastward from Wisconsin but today the coldest place in the nation was International Falls, Minn., with five above zero. It will be colder tonight, he said, in Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Michigan, Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, Missouri and Kansas.

Highway traffic was slower and on some rural roads stalled as a low pressure area deposited heavy snows on northern and north-central Wisconsin.

Park Falls, in Price county, reported a 12-inch snowfall, while Rhinelander and St. Croix Falls recorded 10 and eight inches respectively.

Blocked roadways prevented the opening of the high school at St. Croix Falls, in Polk county, and rural schools near Spooner, in Washburn county, and Rice Lake, in Barron county. Snowplows speedily opened all main highway arteries, however.

Warmer temperatures in the central part of the state caused the snow to turn to sleet and cover highways with a slippery glaze in Wood, Marathon, Portage and Adams counties.

RUSSIANS SURRENDER TO FINNS

The caption approved by the British censor on this picture says it is an "authentic picture of Russian patrol surrendering to Finnish forces, taken by a Finnish officer on the northern front." Farley, Landon Train Companions

Alf Gives Jim His 'Endorsement' for President After Illinois Trip

Springfield, Ill.—(AP)—James A. Farley's intended role in the Democratic presidential race wasn't entirely clear today, but he has Alf Landon's "endorsement" for the nomination.

The postmaster general and the 1936 Republican presidential nominee came here on the same train to make Lincoln day addresses. While Farley parried reporters' questions about his presidential ambitions, Landon smilingly told the newsmen:

"I've always said Jim would make a good president."

Farley was asked about the letter he wrote authorizing Massachusetts Democrats to file a slate of Farley delegates in that state's primary.

"The letter will have to speak for itself," he said. "I don't want to comment on it."

Landon, who had luncheon on the train with Farley and who obviously was enjoying the interview, remarked smilingly to the reporters:

"I hope Jim gives you as good a story as he gave me coming down on the train."

But Farley countered: "He (Landon) didn't get any more out of me than I got out of him."

Waupaca Electric Co-Op Contracts To Expand System

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau Washington.—The Rural Electrification administration has just approved a contract between the Waupaca Electric Co-operative at Iola and E. W. Wylie, Inc., of St. Paul, Minnesota, for building another section of its power system.

Altogether, 157 miles of line will be built, to serve 406 members. Construction will be completed by late spring.

The successful bid was $104,900.79 and includes materials and labor. Total cost, with meters and overhead added, will be $121,976.85.

The Iola co-operative, which consists of 756 members, has already, 294 miles of line in Waupaca, Portage, Shawano and Marathon counties. It has received allotments amounting to $304,000.

All who wish to get service from the new lines, the REA announces, should sign up for it at once and make arrangements for wiring and plumbing installations. Routes are now being laid out, and the network is planned to reach areas where enough member service contracts have been signed to make construction worthwhile economically.

Reveal Edison's Questions In His 'Brightest Boy' Test

New York.—(AP)—Now you may read for yourself the questions that were put to 49 boys in the summer of 1929 to determine who was "America's brightest boy" and the winner of the Thomas A. Edison four-year, all-expense scholarship at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

In disclosing the questionnaire to the New York Times, the Edison family also released the answers of five of the 49 boys—from each state and the District of Columbia—who took part in the examination. The names were withheld.

"When do you think a lie permissible?" was one question. "Whenever a lie hurts no one (under any conditions) but is necessary for appeasing a sufferer," was one reply.

In one question asking the boys to name three men, not living and outside the field of religion, who they thought particularly deserved their respect and admiration, all five selected Abraham Lincoln as one of their three choices.

None named George Washington. Two selected Michael Faraday, the scientist, as one of their other choices. Woodrow Wilson, Steinmetz, Mahan, Galileo, Columbus, Pasteur and Newton received one vote each.

The questions were prepared by a board of examiners consisting of Edison himself, Henry Ford, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, the late George Eastman, Dr. Lewis Perry, headmaster of Phillips Exeter academy, and the late Dr. Samuel W. Stratton, then president of M. I. T.

Edison ruled, however, that the questions be kept secret for a decade.

The winner of the contest was Wilbur M. Huston of Seattle, Wash., who was graduated from M. I. T. with honors, spent four years in the Edison laboratories at West Orange, N. J., and then resigned to become a worker in the Oxford group. His grade on all four divisions was 92, plus out of a possible 100.

In contrast, the Democratic party Organization of Wisconsin delegate candidates are pledged to Roosevelt or his choice.

Eighth district candidates, it was learned, will be two of these three men: Gerald Clifford of Green Bay, Bert Larkin of Two Rivers, and former Senator John E. Cashman of Denmark.

Clifford told a pre-conference banquet meeting last night that the Eighth was the only district in which the Keller organization "small enough" could not find men "small enough" were half communists."

ond cousin, Archibald Roosevelt, Jr., of the Republican Roosevelt.

To his inquiry whether the congress should pass a resolution favoring Finland, Mrs. Roosevelt said: "No, I don't think you should go on record for anything you don't believe in. To Archibald, she added: "I also have sympathy for Finland."

One of young Roosevelt's colleagues, Stephen McArthur, N. J., young Democrat of Kearney, N. J., was ejected from the meeting for the second time in three days when he attempted to introduce the Finnish resolution.

Kansan Hissed

Hisses swept across house galleries occupied by delegates to the youth congress today when Representative Lambertson (R-Kans.) said he thought the Republican national chairman was right in spurning a part in the youth meeting.

While some of the delegates were in the house galleries, the congress assembly of 100-odd leaders authorized political cooperation with organized labor.

The assembly also voted: 1. To press for a senate committee hearing March 15 on the $500,000, 000-a-year American youth act and have signed throughout the country circulate petitions for the act.

2. To sponsor local committee to watch for civil liberties violations and observe the activities of the department of justice in that field, to demand closed debate on that field, to support a bill to outlaw poll taxes in federal elections, to guard against anti-Semitism and to keep an eye on attempts to revive certain World war emergency legislation.

After the Lambertson incident there was no further hissing in the house, but several youths made "thumbs down" signs a few minutes later when Representative Hoffman (R-Mich.) made remarks critical of the C.I.O.

GALLERY attendants warned them to stop and they obeyed.

What's New at the Library

"The Inside Story" by members of the Overseas Press Club of America relates personal experiences and inside stories told by noted foreign correspondents, among them H. V. Kaltenborn, Eugene Lyons, Irene Kuhn, Wythe Williams, Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., and 15 others. Kaltenborn describes radio's role in war, Williams discloses the real story of Abd El Krim's uprising against the French in Africa, Peggy Hull describes Pancho Villa's raid on Columbus, N. M., and Eugene Lyons analyzes Stalin's counter-revolution, and there are many other incidents told first-hand by the journalists on the scene.

Altpower, the great factor in modern warfare on which Germany probably is staking her fate and which the Allies are developing with all their resources and energy, is discussed in detail in "Armies with Wings" by James L. H. Peck. The book tells how a modern air force goes about its business, defines different branches of aviation, such as pursuit, attack, bombardment, reconnaissance and utility, tells how planes are designed, tested and manufactured, and talks about the men who fly them. Because Henry Pratt Fairchild is not only a teacup but a leader in the civic life of New York City, he has discovered that intelligent adults as well as students need to examine and understand the economic order in which we live. Accordingly he has written a book entitled "Economics for the Millions" in which he presents salient facts which require no special background of knowledge in order to be understood by the layman.

A book which is self-styled "a collectors item for the celebrity hunter" is "Softball-So What?" by Lowell Thomas and Ted Shane. ABRAHAM LINCOLN: HIS LIFE WITH MARY

Backstage in the life of every great man, every man for that matter, stands a woman. Behind the story of Abraham Lincoln, whose 131st birthday is observed posthumously today, there is an enigma of a woman, Mary Todd Lincoln.

How did life with this woman, progressively admired, feared, hated, pitied and forgotten, effect that of America's great president? How was his character molded by the constant tempest which was his home life? Was this a vital part of his self-disciplining philosophy which gave him such great self-control, such deep human understanding?

It seems fitting, as a rather unusual approach to remembering Lincoln on this day, that an attempt be made to answer these questions.

Mary Todd was born of an aristocratic southern family, at Lexington, Ky., grew to womanhood in the traditional southern manner. She and Abe Lincoln met at Springfield, Ill., where he was a young and promising lawyer. Apparently they became enraptured of each other quite rapidly. Then Lincoln began having misgivings.

He saw reasons why marriage would not be good for either him or Mary Todd. He set down these cold arguments as in a brief, went to see Mary Todd, presented his case. She broke down and wept, Lincoln took her in his arms, kissed her, and the engagement was still on.

But the fact that his firm resolves had broken down before a woman's tears made Lincoln miserable. Like most young men he believed that nothing like this had ever happened to man before. He grew extremely introspective, and while Mary Todd, realizing the situation, did break off the engagement, for many months Abraham Lincoln was just another love-stricken young man.

Extremely idealistic then and throughout his whole life, Lincoln considered marriage a bargain between two persons whose terms should be clearly set down on paper at the outset. Once previously he had written another young woman of intimate acquaintanceship:

"Whatever woman may cast her lot with mine, should any ever do so, it is my intention to do all in my power to make her happy and contented; and there is nothing I can imagine that would make me more unhappy than to fail in the effort. I know I should be much happier with you than the way I am, provided I saw no signs of discontent in you. What you have said to me may have been in the way of jest, or I may have misunderstood it. If so, then let it be forgotten; if other wise, I much wish you would think seriously before you decide. What I have said I will most positively abide by, provided you wish it. My opinion is that you had better not do it."

Lincoln's candid opinion apparently bore more weight than his attractions as a lover. The lady accepted his advice.

About a year later the marriage of Lincoln's best friend, Joshua Speed, which turned out much beyond the expectations of either of the two young men, finally gave Lincoln courage to propose again to Mary Todd, whose memory continued to haunt him. She was still waiting, and they were married Nov. 4, 1842, in Springfield, at the home of Mary's sister.

Even before they were wed Mrs. Lincoln had periods of severe headaches which at times bordered on hysteria and hallucinations. During the 22 years they were married these increased in intensity, making of her a woman of widely-varied emotions. She would have periods of intense anger and spitefulness, of depression, yet at other times she appeared perfectly normal. Their home life apparently varied in extremes, though Mrs. Lincoln's love for her husband and children down underneath it all was never questioned.

Yet how could this but affect the temperament of her husband, a man who in his later years, outside of his home, bore the suffering of an entire nation upon his shoulders, and who in addition often came home at night to a household torn and disrupted by his wife's ravings.

This is how Carl Sandburg, her biographer, speaks of it:

"Her sudden anger, interrupting a smoothly moving breakfast, her swift warnings in the dark quiet of the night time when fears came to possess her—these brought long thoughts to her husband. Did she become to him a manner of symbol—a miniature of the sea of life, smooth and shining with promise and then suddenly treacherous and hateful with devastation? We do not know. It may be so. We cannot be sure in such a realm of the deeper undertows that move people into words and acts.

"We do know that from year to year there was a growing control in her husband, a strange and more mystic tinting of his spirit. Under the bonds and leashes that wove and tied his life with that of Mary Todd he saw a self-development that became a mystery to his friends. The outstanding trait of him, according to Herndon (a biographer), was that he was a 'learner,' raising the question whether he was indeed such a learner that he could apply to the benefit of his own growth the maxim he quoted to Speed from his father: 'If you make a bad bargain, hug it all the tighter.'"

The conflict in Lincoln's mind aroused by his wife's tongue-lashings must have become almost unbearable after he became president. For, to quote Sandburg:

"With Lincoln's inauguration as president of the United States in 1861 she hugged to her heart the gratification of being the First Lady of the Land. Her fond dreams had come true, yet for her it was not merely a signal that she was to wife, comfort, cheer the new president and help him carry the load. She took it she was also an adviser, an ex-officio cabinet officer, an auxiliary first magistrate. From the first she suggested appointments and was vehement as to who should fill this or that place."

She carried this to such extremes as bitterly attacking high cabinet officers at public functions, such as calling Secretary of State Seward "a dirty abolitionist-sneak," scorching the wife of Gen. Grant to her face, continually writing this or that administrator urging him to use his influence to get some friend of hers a position.

She even secured the appointment of the drunkard and the lout who was assigned to guard the president's box the fateful night of April 14, 1865, the dullard who did not notice that a peep hole had been bored through the door of the box and that the plaster had been chipped away from the wall for the insertion of an iron bar to block off the passageway from the balcony to the box, the alcohol addict who slipped out for a pony of whiskey just before John Wilkes Booth stole silently into the box, levelled his oneshot brass derringer pistol at the head of the president less than five feet away, pulled the trigger and crashed a large lead ball into the skull of Abraham Lincoln.

The assassination at least definitely proved to the world Mary Todd's love for the unconscious Lincoln.

They were sitting there in the box and she was leaning on his lap. "What will Miss Harris think of me hanging on to you so?" she asked him. "She won't think anything about it," he said, and those were the last words ever spoken by Abraham Lincoln.

The ball spurted quietly, destructively into his brain.

She crushed him to her breast, clutched him as they carried him out and to a room in a house across the street, his last life-blood staining her expensive gown. She sat the night out with him there until early morning when he died.

And after that she was paralyzed.

As the minister remarked 17 years afterward at her funeral, "When Abraham Lincoln died, she died."

Mary Todd Lincoln was never the same again after that fearful night.

She finally left the White House, went with her son Tad to live in Chicago. Here it was she suddenly became obsessed with the idea she and her children were poverty-stricken, though Lincoln had left an estate of $100,000. Here it was she addressed letters to everyone in Washington in an effort to get a pension. Here it was she announced her plans to sell all her personal belongings at auction to raise money to feed her family, shocking the whole nation.

She got away from it all for a time by going to London and Paris with Tad, where he studied. After a bit they returned home, to Chicago again, and there only a short time after they arrived, Tad, now 18, contracted typhoid and died.

The loss of the third of her four sons put the final ruin to Mary Todd.

It was not long afterward that her remaining son, Robert, was forced to have her declared insane and incompetent by Cook county court. The name of Mary Todd Lincoln, widow of Abraham Lincoln, deceased, was entered in the Lunatic Record.

She was taken to a private sanitarium at Batavia, Ill., and here she spent probably the most peaceful days of her life after Lincoln. After a year there she had recovered enough so that she was again given charge of her own affairs. She was free again, and to get away from people she knew she went abroad again. She was in her 69th year in Pau, France, living cheaply in a boarding house, when she fell from a stepladder and suffered inflammation of the spinal cord and a partial crippling of the legs. She improved just enough to be taken back to America.

She traveled a slow route back to Springfield, to the home of her sister where she had been wed. She lived in a candle-lit room, refused to go out of doors. She lingered on here in the shadows over two years. On July 16, 1922, she died.

It is difficult for one to say in whose

Washington—Up until now it has been a military secret, but within the last three or four weeks the Finns have received 300 fighting planes from the British.

They were shipped at the rate of about 100 per week secretly to Sweden, where they were assembled and flown to Finland. This is the most important assistance the Finns have had for some time, and indicates the seriousness with which the British finally view the Finnish war.

It will be recalled that when the war first started and the Finns appealed to Britain for help, Foreign Minister Halifax replied that aid to the Finns might alienate a friendly neutral—Russia.

Confidential word also has been received here that a few German airplanes and pilots are being used by the Finns. It is not clear, however, whether these are supplied by Field Marshal Goering and the general staff, known to be out of sympathy with Russia, or whether they were supplied by exiled German business men.

LINCOLN IN LAFAYETTE PARK
One day last summer, Frank Murphy, now justice of the supreme court, and Claude Bowers, now ambassador to Chile, were walking through Lafayette park just in front of the White House.

Bowers remarked that he had in his files a very interesting and original memo regarding Civil War days and Abraham Lincoln. The memo pertained to the then British minister, who was enamored of a certain Washington society lady.

One summer's evening during the Civil war they were sitting in that same Lafayette park. At that time, Bowers explained, the park had a high fence around it and a gate which was locked at night.

The British minister and his lady remained seated in one end of the park until late in the evening, apparently not noticing that the gates were being locked.

Finally they tried to get out and were greatly embarrassed to find that exit was impossible. Just then they noticed a figure in a high top hat come out on the front porch of the White house just across the street.

"Oh, Mr. President! Mr. President!" shouted the British minister.

Mr. Lincoln heard, came over and examined the fence, then went back to the White house. He returned in a few minutes with a ladder which he put up against the fence, and helped the lady and her diplomatic escort to the other side.

"It must have taken quite a voice to have made the president hear from this distance," remarked Frank Murphy. And to test it out, he cupped his hands to his mouth and tried his own voice.

"And then," concluded Ambassador Bowers, "Mr. Lincoln went back to the White house and wrote a memorandum about the incident. I have that memorandum."

"Wonder why he wrote a memorandum?" mused Murphy.

"Oh, I guess he had a touch of the New Dealer in him," shot back Bowers.

Notes: Probable reason for President Lincoln's writing the memorandum was that it is a criminal offense to detain or arrest a foreign diplomat. Probably Lincoln wanted to record his interpretation of the incident in cast of a protest from the British government.

DIPLOMATIC NOTES
Members of the United States embassy in Berlin are permitted to import food from outside Germany, to supplement the German rations. . . . During debate on the state department appropriation, a congressman called the department on the phone, and said, "You've got an item in the appropriations for a United States legation in Thailand. Is that a country? Where is it?" The answer was, "Siam." . . . The lady who runs the apartment house at 19th and F streets in Washington is proud that Corcoran and Cohen occupy a penthouse apartment in her building. She is confident that the entire government is run from her apartment house. . . . Carlos Davila, former president of Chile, says of the new Inter-American bank, "Nothing more important has occurred in the field of Pan-Americanism since the Monroe Doctrine."

VICE PRESIDENT LA GUARDIA
Don't be surprised if you hear more talk of Fiorello LaGuardia as a vice-presidential or even presidential candidate from now on.

Some of the president's advisers, plus certain conservative Democratic strategists, have been doing some serious thinking about LaGuardia recently.

They point to the fact that the dynamic mayor of Manhattan has strength where the New Deal needs it most, namely in New York, Pennsylvania, and along the Atlantic seaboard. In the big metropolitan areas he is extremely popular. And it is exactly in these areas that Cordell Hull, should he be the Democratic candidate, would need strength.

Should Dewey be the Republican candidate, for instance, it will take LaGuardia on the Democratic ticket to offset the already tested Dewey popularity in New York in order to carry the all-important Empire State for the Democrats.

Soundings in the far west and middle west also indicate that LaGuardia has built up a real reputation.

Chief trouble with the LaGuardia candidacy so far is that no one has been pushing it. Fiorello himself has been too busy being mayor of New York City, and has entrusted his national political strategy largely to Assistant Secretary of State Adolf Berle, than whom there is no worse politician.

Berle would like to see Hull in the White house and LaGuardia as vice president, in which case it would not be unreasonable to think of him in the job of Secretary of state. However, if the political fate of these two men rests entirely in Berle's hands, neither they nor his own ambitions will get very far.

MAIL BAG
B.D., Minneapolis — War department has no special arrangements to care for wives or dependents of men who might be drafted for military service. As in the world war, soldiers would be encouraged, but not forced, to send part of their pay home. However, there is little likelihood that married men, or men with dependents, would be selected at all. . . . G. H., Fredericksburg, Va.—Protocol experts say that in the case of a big reception, it is entirely proper to avoid saying goodbye to the host and hostess; in fact, it is more considerate not to make them shake hands a second time.

Life there was more tragedy, in that of Abraham Lincoln or his wife Mary.

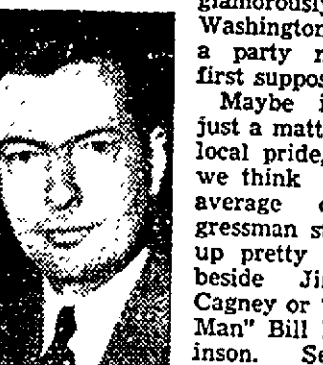

But knowledge of the life of Mary must bring home to everyone a deeper insight of the character of her husband, a man who developed self-control and will power to a super-man degree, a man who believed and lived the preachment that one should "hug a bad bargain all the tighter," and who made a success of a marriage which today would have ended up in the mess of the divorce courts within two weeks time.

That insight gives some idea of why Lincoln will ever be regarded as one of America's greatest men.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—We cannot escape recording that Hollywood's film actors and actresses do not glow so glamorously in Washington as a party might first suppose.

Maybe it is just a matter of local pride, but we think your average congressman stacks up pretty well beside Jimmy Cagney or "Bad Man" Bill Robinson. Seeing a congressman and movie actors in the mass, you get a feeling that Rep. Joe Binbo from Middle-ton is more nearly worth his $10,000 a year than boyish Mickey Rooney his $5,000 a week.

But we'll concede at once that Washington gets a bigger kick out of a visiting movie actor than out of a whole house full of congressmen. An average gallery in house or senate will not exceed 200. When Dorothy Lamour hove into town, 2,000 dotting Washingtonians mobbed the theater, broke through police lines to scream:

"Lemme touch her, lemme touch her!"

Anybody who thinks this city is altogether politically-minded is strong he ought to set himself right.

Political Note: The hand that rocks the cradle also casts some votes, so we hear Presidential Candidate Paul V. McNutt speaking:

"In bad times, it is the men who do most of the complaining but the women who do the economizing. If you will look around at your neighbors—Your own family always is an exception—you will find that during the lean years the man's needs are the last to feel the pinch. Hell smoke his cigars—and drop the ashes on the carpet—long after his wife has cut down on her beauty treatments. His country club dues will be paid even if her sewing club cuts out the refreshments to save expense. He continues his golf game long after she has materially reduced the household expenses."

Next week: Baby-Kissing.

Reporters can hardly wait for Associate Justice Frank Murphy to write his first opinion on the Supreme Court. His press conferences as attorney general were so sermonizing in tone the reporters suspect he may cite a case from Leviticus or Paul's epistles to the Corinthians to help decide a railroad right-of-way case. And perhaps it would be a good idea at that.

Culinary Note: Wise eaters at the Capitol never order the Senate's famous bean soup early in the week. The bean soup cook seems never to get the brew right until about Wednesday or Thursday.

Idahoans were not greatly surprised that Borah had $207,000 saved up as a nest egg, although they thought it would be a trifle less. He had in excess of $100,000 when he came to the senate in 1907, and his re-election has been such a cinch ever since that campaign expenses have been trifling. He probably never had to hire a hall in Idaho in his life. Most members of Congress figure campaigning will take $2,000 to $4,000 a year out of their $10,000 salaries.

Society Note: "I have been a member of the foreign relations committee for a long time and I never yet have been in a foreign embassy. I take that back. One time I was in the Russian embassy to get some caviar."—Senator Harrison of Mississippi.

Notes on the wing: Heading the Anglo-French purchasing board are a pair of cryptic names—Hyde and Forget. . . . It is G. Miller Hyde for the British and Andre Forget for the French. . . . he would pronounce it "Forky" with a soft G. . . . Senator Connally of Texas, even when sick, has a telephone at his bedside where his office can reach him. . . . Desks supplied for senators in the senate office building cost $800 and chairs $150.

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO
Monday, Feb. 10, 1930

With all available county snow removal equipment struggling desperately against huge snow drifts, piled on north and south roads over the weekend by an unusually high wind, Outagamie county saw its first serious traffic tie-up.

The Majestic theater, 116 E. College avenue, permanently closed its doors with its last feature showing Sunday night, according to an announcement by Carl Beglinger, manager. It had been operating the previous 15 years.

A book, Special Verdicts versus General Verdicts, as Construed Under the Wisconsin Code, written by Circuit Judge Edgar V. Werner, was being published and distributed by a St. Louis firm.

At a recent meeting of the board of trustees of the Congregational church, the following officers and committees were named: President, D. M. Hyde; clerk, R. M. Marston; treasurer, R. E. "SHALL NOT PERISH FROM THE EARTH"

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—It isn't generally known but state Democratic leaders have been discussing the advisability of putting a progressive or two on the pro-Roosevelt states which are being organized by the Broughton and Keller factions in the Democratic party as delegate candidates for the Chicago national convention this summer.

The Wisconsin Rapids meeting of the Broughton organization today may show some suggestions of that idea, while it is also being toyed with by the leaders of the Democratic Party Organization of Wisconsin which is out to wrest control of the state party from the old leadership personified by Broughton.

Such a move, it is pointed out, would be a shrewd step toward a more formal coalition with the Progressives in the fall elections. Most of the high-ranking Progressives have been Roosevelt boosters, including the two remaining Progressive congressmen from Wisconsin. A campaign for election to a delegate position on the law revision must certify to the counties in the fall of each year the amounts of construction allotments available to them for state trunk highway work during the following season.

It is now impossible to get an accurate idea of what the program will be. At the weekend the highway commission and the Heil office were still revising details. Result is to create considerable confusion and pessimism in the big highway industry which depends to a profound degree on state construction contracts.

LOCALITIES AND PENSIONS

Watch for a move in the 1941 legislature to transfer the share of the social security costs (old age assistance, aid to dependent children, and blind aids) now borne by the local units of government to the state government.

The proportion of the burden is now 50 per cent by the federal government, 30 per cent by the state and 20 per cent by the localities. Although the localities on that basis seem to be favored, by degrees they have been deprived of any effective voice in the administration of the pension aids.

Slowly but surely the state and federal governments have taken over control. Last straw, in a sense, is the new federal-state requirement that counties must employ their pension workers from civil service lists. The feeling is growing in the courthouses of Wisconsin that if Madison and Washington insist on controlling the program completely, the counties can scarcely be expected to continue to support it.

(Such a move would meet no objection, surely, from the local property tax-payers. Moreover pension leagues have agitated for several years for a state system. But the transfer would increase the state budget some $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 a year, and that's the rub.)

BOLENS ON HEIL

Senator Harry Bolens of Port Washington, veteran Democratic whip in the state senate and the personification of the conservative coalition spirit, dropped into the capitol press room the other day to chat with reporters. What did he

WHEN YOU ARE OLD
Remember how sorry you felt when you were twenty for people who were as old as thirty or even older? Then at thirty most of us look with sincere sympathy upon the sad state of life into which folk unfortunate enough to be forty have drifted. But when, all too soon, we find we are forty it is not so hard, after all, to laugh it off and kid ourselves along with the thought that now life really begins, and the decade from forty to fifty will be the best of all. Too bad for the poor old geezers who have already reached fifty. They're done. We are just beginning to live. As the fiftieth birthday rolls along one does wince slightly at the thought of half a century—ought to be a law against the word century—which suggests a wizened, wheezing, bent, half blind, deaf, toothless, barely animate corpse of a human being.

Yet at fifty if you still have sound teeth or functionally efficient artificial teeth or dentures and no focal infection as a result of neglect of your teeth—in the typical Yankee wiseacre way, that is, depending on some dentrifice when you should be investing the money in dental service, for, after all, only cleaning, scaling, polishing and if necessary filling of beginning cavities at regular intervals can save your teeth—and if you can still run a mile, you can be happy about the whole thing.

Aside from the time you aged a couple of decades the day you discovered the incipient bald spot when you were thirty-five, you never can tell definitely when you are old, altho your suspicions should be aroused if you find that you are becoming less inclined to think of Heil's anti-oleo speeches, he was asked? (Bolens in the legislature has been one of the most fervent supporters of the Cashman oleo tax).

"Julius is the only man in Wisconsin who could get away with a statement like that," said the 76 year old fighter of the governor's assurance he would work to repeal the tax.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Try It On The Master

Have received a great deal of benefit from one of your suggestions—the use of wheat germ. Several of my friends have tried it out, too, and all agree with me. Finally I began feeding it to our Airedale, and since he has had it his coat is much better and he has put on more weight and is livelier than before. . . . (Mrs. F. K.)

Ans.—Of course all of the advantages derived from wheat germ are to be derived from plain wheat. Vitamin content of six ounces of wheat is approximately equal to that of one ounce of wheat germ. Send 11-cent-stamped envelope bearing your address, and ask for monograph "Wheat to Eat" which tells why and how to use wheat in the everyday dietary.

This Is The Appleton Post-Crescent's 20th Anniversary Year

It Costs $1091.67 to Open this Door Each Day

THE POST-CRESCENT'S accomplishments during the past twenty years cannot be measured entirely in terms of figures. (A newspaper's real worth is determined by the service it renders its community.) Nevertheless, it is interesting to note that the daily average cost of publishing the Post-Crescent in 1940 is nearly two and one half times what it was in 1920 when this newspaper came into being.

There are several reasons for this difference, including a sharp increase in the number of Post-Crescent employes and in the amount paid each employe. There has also been a vast improvement in the mechanics of newspaper publishing; a marked widening of news coverage, features and pictorial journalism; a tremendous jump in circulation.

Actually, the improvement in Post-Crescent service to readers is greater than the increase in production costs indicates. After all, it takes experience, ability, intelligence and loyalty to make a better product. The Post-Crescent has been favored with an abundance of these qualities, none of which can be precisely measured in terms of dollars.

Twenty years from now, the Post-Crescent will undoubtedly be a better newspaper than it is today, but only by TOMORROW'S standards. Undoubtedly, it will be entirely different in appearance, as witness the change in the past twenty years. But, whatever it looks like, it will owe its development to the same spirit that has made the Post-Crescent what it is in 1940 — the best newspaper we know how to publish.

Neenah to Oppose Shawano in Scrap For League Crown

Rockets Need Win to Cop Title or Share of It Tuesday Night

Neenah — Whether Neenah High school's basketball team will cop the championship of the Northwestern Wisconsin conference or a share of it will be determined Tuesday night when the Red Rockets clash with the Indians at Shawano.

The crucial Shawano game is the final obstacle in the way of the Neenah quest, for although the Rockets have to play Clintonville the Trucks won't offer much opposition for Neenah.

The only way Neenah can win the title is by defeating Shawano and then New London has to lose either to Kaukauna or Menasha. If the Trucks win these two games, Neenah and New London will be deadlocked for the conference crown, for the Rockets now hold only a mathematical lead over the Bulldogs, the latter five having played one less game than Neenah.

The Rockets are going to find Shawano a hard team to beat Tuesday night, for although Neenah is favored to beat the Indians on paper, their performances during the last three games don't give the Rockets the edge.

While Neenah Friday night was having an easy time walloping West DePere, Shawano was staging a terrific battle against New London, the Bulldogs coping, 26 to 22, in an overtime period.

Drop Two Games
While the Rockets were riding the crest of the conference wave, winning seven straight games, the Neenah outfit knocked off Shawano, 31 to 21. After winning from Shawano, the Rockets went on to walloping Menasha and then dropped into the doldrums, losing to Kaukauna and New London.

Neenah's prospects Tuesday night are embodied in a brief expression exclaimed by Coach Ole Jorgensen today: "It depends on whether the boys play basketball." They haven't been doing that during the last three weeks, but they have the stuff, and as Coach Jorgensen said, "They have a good game in them some place."

The Hesselman-Reed duel will be resumed tomorrow night. Bill Reed, Shawano's high scoring ace, is leading Harland Hesselman, the Rockets' sharpshooter, in conference scoring by about 11 points. Hesselman has counted 140 points in 10 conference games and 153 in 11 contests.

In the first game between Neenah and Shawano, Hesselman scored 20 points while holding Reed to six, and Coach Jorgensen undoubtedly will assign Hesselman to cover Reed tomorrow night.

Buxton Ketterling, lefthanded forward, has scored 55 points this season, while Richard Miller, guard, is third with 33. His mate, Julius Hertzfeldt, guard, has counted 28, and Charles Ketterling, forward, 22. Ed Winkelman, forward, who was unable to play against West DePere Friday because of illness, has scored 19.

Coach Ivan Williams' second team, undefeated in 11 straight games, is headed for the conference title. The young Rockets scored a 21 to 17 victory over the Shawano reserves in the first meeting.

Zephyr Cagers to Face Squires at DePere Tonight

Victory Will Clinch Third Fox Valley Catholic Title for Zephyrs

Menasha — St. Mary's High school cagers will attempt to clinch a share of the Fox Valley Catholic conference title tonight when they meet the St. Norbert High school team at DePere. If the Zephyrs win tonight they will be sure of at least a share of the title for all other teams in the conference have lost at least one game each and the Zephyrs have eight straight wins.

If the Zephyrs win it will be their third straight conference basketball title. They were the undisputed champions in 1938 but last year were forced to share the title with St. John's of Little Chute. The Flying Dutchmen again are the closest competitors for league honors as they have only one defeat on their record. That was 33 to 20 decision for the Zephyrs.

The St. Norbert game originally was scheduled for Tuesday night but was advanced one day at the request of the DePere school. The change also works well for the Zephyrs as they will have an additional day of rest before meeting Neenah in the feature game of the season Friday night.

The Squires still retain a mathematical chance for the title. They already have lost to the Zephyrs 43 to 13 and to St. John's 27 to 21. However, if they win the rest of their games and St. John's manages to edge the Zephyrs, the Squires can gain a tie. A defeat tonight will eliminate them from the race.

Play on Big Court

The Squires will have the added advantage of their own large court tonight. Collins, a hard-driving forward, is the leading scorer of the team. He has broken away for 22, 18, 13 and 11 points against various conference teams but the Zephyrs bottled him rather completely. He did manage five of the 13 points the Squires scored that night.

The Zephyrs have averaged nearly 40 points a game against conference opponents. They have piled up 310 points in eight tilts to 112 for their foes. They have managed 133 field goals and 44 free throws. Conference opponents have scored the same number of free throws but have only 34 field goals.

William Resch leads the team in conference scoring with 99 points followed by Frank Johnson with 79. Griesbach has tossed in 56 points in conference games.

Bluejays Return To Home Floor for Battle With Kaws

Reserve Team Game Will Precede Varsity Tilt Tuesday

Menasha — After three successive games away from home, Menasha High school cagers will make their first home start in nearly four weeks when the high-scoring Kaukauna High school cagers invade the Menasha gymnasium Tuesday night. Reserve teams of the two schools will meet at 7 o'clock and the varsity tilt will follow at 8 o'clock.

Although the Kaws have received three defeats in the conference, they are the second highest team in the conference on offense. They have counted 310 points in nine conference tilts. Only Shawano has scored more points and the Indians have played 10 conference tilts to pile up 321 points.

Once more the Jays will have to battle against a great advantage in height. Lanky William Alger, J. Bloch, and Carl Giordana gave the Kaws a decided advantage in height and weight to use in driving into the basket.

The only hope for the Jays is their fighting, aggressive spirit. They will have to rely on speed and ball handling on offense and will have to attempt to keep the Kaws away from the basket. They also will need to be on shooting in order to make the game close. The Menasha High team has been hampered by inaccurate shooting in many tilts.

Play Good Ball

The Jays have played good basketball during the year in spite of the fact that they have only four victories and five defeats. Their one really bad game was at Kaukauna when they suffered a 35 to 18 defeat.

Against Clintonville last Friday night the Jays played smooth basketball. They were on in shooting and three players figured high in the scoring where usually scoring has not been well-divided.

The starting line-up against Clintonville was composed entirely of underclassmen and Coach Ansgore probably will use that group of players in remaining games, building for next year's team. Probable starters for the game Tuesday night are Henry Ostewalski and Fred Landskron at forwards, Ray Wipich at center, and Roland O'Brien and Gust Block at guards.

Ostewalski was particularly effective against Clintonville. He has done little scoring this season in eight previous games but collected five baskets against the Trucks.

The Trucks, of course, did not provide the same class of opposition that other conference teams offer but even so the Jays were playing heads-up basketball. If they play the same type of game against Kaukauna Tuesday night, the contest may be close.

The Kaws are hoping for a share of the conference title. If they win their last three games and Shawano upsets Neenah, the Kaws will have a share of the title. They must play Shawano and New London after the Menasha game.

Menasha Firemen Search for Fire That Wasn't There

Neenah—The popular song, "The Little Man Who Wasn't There," took on a new connotation for Menasha firemen who were routed out of bed about 3:15 Sunday morning, but they probably didn't feel like singing the revised version of "The Little Fire That Wasn't There" so early in the morning.

An alarm roused the firemen, an operator informing them there was a fire at 417 First street. Firemen dashed to the address and trained spotlights on the house, awakening the neighborhood. But there wasn't a fire. Thinking that they may have misunderstood the address, the firemen dashed around the block to 417 Third street without success.

It occurred to the fire fighters that maybe the fire was in Neenah, so they returned to the station and called the Neenah department.

To top the early morning's activities, there wasn't a fire at all, only smoke in the home of Frank Cota, 417 First street, Neenah.

Tickets Available for Neenah-Shawano Game

Neenah—Principal J. H. Holzman reported today that 50 tickets for the Neenah-Shawano game Tuesday night have been secured from Shawano High school and have been put on sale at Draheim's sports store.

A large delegation of Neenah fans is expected to attend the Northeastern Wisconsin conference title game at Shawano.

Hill Named Head Of Company E at Annual Reunion

Banquet Is Held Saturday Night at Menasha Hotel

Menasha—Earl Hill was elected president of Company E, Fourth Wisconsin Infantry, at the third annual reunion and banquet Saturday night at Hotel Menasha. Ed Levandowski was named vice president and Albert Rosenow was elected secretary and treasurer. About 40 members of the company attended the banquet.

Ray J. Fink contrasted Americanism with the "isms" of foreign countries in the main address. He commented on the report of the Dies committee and the activities of un-American groups in this country. Fink advised members of the company that their duty is to become better informed about un-American activities and then counteract them.

R. T. Till acted as officer of the day. Ray Henk, past president of the group, spoke briefly. Henry Otto, Appleton, acted as toastmaster.

Conducts Service
Waldo C. Friedland conducted the service in memory of deceased members of the company. Of the 134 officers and men in the company that left Menasha in 1917, 25 were killed in action or have died since the war.

Deceased members of the company are Clarence Arneam, Urban Bergeson, John Brzycki, Raymond Daniels, Thomas Delorme, Fred Fenske, William Ferguson, John T. Gamsky, William Garrow, Frank Gatz, Andrew Heckner, Nels Jensen, Frank Konezke, Philip Leonard, Joseph LeFave, John H. Millett, Michael O'Brien, Levette Rohrer, Ben J. Schultz, Leo Schoronske, Mike Sylvanowicz, Frank Skalmoski, Carl Ulrich, Raymond Weyenberg, and James Wilson.

Following the banquet and business meeting, the company adjourned to Elks hall for entertainment. Arrangements for the banquet were made by Henry Jankowski, Ray Henk, Alfred Baenke, John C. Melcher, Henry Otto, Russell Lornson, Leslie A. Remmel, C. B. Anderson, W. C. Friedland, and Steve Kolasinski.

Marquart Trial Will Be Held on March 11

The trial of Carl Marquart, Oshkosh, who Saturday pleaded not guilty of fourth degree manslaughter in the traffic death of John Heller, 17, Neenah, will open Monday, March 11, in municipal court at Oshkosh. A jury will be struck March 4 and Judge D. E. McDonald will hear the case. Heller was killed in a traffic crash involving a Post-Crescent truck and a car driven by Marquart. A story in the Post-Crescent Saturday, because of a typographical error, said that Marquart pleaded guilty of manslaughter instead of not guilty.

Seek New Site for Rehabilitation Camp

Milwaukee—The director Frank C. Klode of the state department of public welfare is looking for a new site for a rehabilitation camp for released convicts, because residents and resort owners protested plans to establish the project at the Lake Kentuck transient camp on the Vilas-Forest country line.

The Superior Association of Commerce has suggested using the former prison camp at Gordon, Douglas county.

"There's no use in putting the rehabilitation project at the Lake Kentuck site when all the neighbors object," Klode said. "There's no use antagonizing the neighborhood when there are a number of other places available where the community would welcome such a project."

LEWIS GREETING MRS. ROOSEVELT

Shortly after John L. Lewis, head of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, greeted President Roosevelt in a speech before the American Youth Congress in Washington, he stepped down from the platform to greet one of his listeners—Mrs. Roosevelt. The congress gave Lewis a rousing ovation. Earlier, Mr. Roosevelt had addressed the delegates from the south portico of the White House.

Clapper Sees No Objection to Welles Interviewing Europe

Washington—Headlines saying "U. S. Launches World Peace Parley" go a little too strong. Eventually they may come true—but that will depend.

President Roosevelt has asked Under-Secretary of State Welles to go to Europe as his confidential eyes and ears and size up the situation. His job is not to make proposals but to listen to any talk of possible peace terms that either side cares to make.

It is to be all informal, confidential, for the private information and guidance of President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull.

The stop in Italy is of minor importance. The significant thing is that Mr. Welles will visit the belligerents—Germany on the one side, and England and France on the other. He is a career diplomat, veteran of many delicate situations, a most attentive listener, not too much of a talker.

When the word reached the capital that Mr. Welles was being sent to Europe, Senator Hiram Johnson, now dean of the senate isolationists, came racing out of the stable snorting, "We ought to mind our own business."

Clapper
There can't be any intelligent objection to sending Mr. Welles to Europe at this time, for if he is ever going, now is the time. I doubt if he or anybody knows whether he will find any hopeful circumstances. Our ambassador to London, Joseph Kennedy, came back some weeks ago so gloomy that he could scarcely discuss it. He saw nothing but doom ahead. Our ambassador to France, William C. Bullitt, who has just returned here, is reported to be more optimistic.

Added up, the picture as it has been reported here has been unfavorable to an early peace, with neither side ready to quit before there has been a showdown. It has looked as if this time there was to be a finish fight by Germany to smash the British empire. The Allies have thought Germany was preparing for a smashing air and submarine attack on England this spring. The British have been counting most heavily upon their ability to withstand such an attack and to slowly crush Germany by blockade.

Can Determine Outlook Only By Asking Combatants
How much of all that is bluff and brave front, how eager coin swells really are for peace, how much can be done if only a way can be found for both sides to save face—all of these are questions and it will be the task of Mr. Welles to try to find out what the real answers are. Obviously all three of the belligerents are ready to talk to him—how frankly he is yet to learn.

If he can find between Berlin and London any common denominators, any practical bases upon which they would be willing to open peace discussion, the chances are that Mr. Roosevelt would follow in immediately with a proposition. To try to guess now whether such a basis will be found by Mr. Welles would be silly.

Something else is taking place also, which for the present is totally unrelated to the coming visit of Mr. Welles to the belligerents. The United States has begun informal diplomatic conversations with neutrals relating to post-war problems. Any peace settlement and the conditions created by it will have their effects upon neutrals, including our own. Questions of armament limitations are always involved, but more important will be economic questions concerning trade and

Relief Corps, V.F.W. Auxiliary to Sponsor Benefit Picture Shows

Neenah—The Neenah Women's Relief corps and the auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars will sponsor benefit motion pictures for a period of two weeks beginning Feb. 21 and continuing through March 5 at the Embassy theater. Funds from the benefit will be used for welfare activity within the two organizations.

Mrs. Oscar Blank, 705 Hewitt street, is general chairman for the Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars and Mrs. Ralph Suess, Cleveland street, Menasha, is general chairman from the Women's Relief corps.

The main movie which the corps and auxiliary is sponsoring is "The Fighting 69th." Other movies to be shown during the 2-week benefit will include "Balalaika," "The Great Victor Herbert" and "The Housekeeper's Daughter."

currency relationships. Neutrals may have a part in the next peace settlement, and certainly in the innumerable conferences are bound to follow peace. Under the leadership of the United States, the neutrals are surveying the interests which they will have in those post-war readjustments. That activity looks toward the more distant future than the scouting trip of Mr. Welles.

Those who are nervous about the Welles mission could well afford to spare themselves anxiety. If both sides have had enough, and are ready to talk sense, and convey as much to the personal representative of Mr. Roosevelt, is there anyone who would wish the United States on some vague idea of "minding our own business"—to refrain from offering its good offices? If the belligerents haven't had enough and are going to fight it out, if there is no averting the complete catastrophe, then we might as well know it so that we may be guided accordingly.

FLORENCE ROGGE, Director of the Radio City Music Hall Corps de Ballet, and authority on ballet instruction.

According to Florence Rogge, Director of the Radio City Music Hall Corps de Ballet of New York City, girls who complain about undeveloped legs would do well to take up ballet dancing. For the canons strengthen and firm the muscles of the thighs and calves.

Ms. Rogge is not only a dancing mistress, but is a famed dancer as well, having made her first public appearance at the tender age of twelve. When in high school she saw Nureyev dance, and that decided her on ballet as a career. She toured the United States and Canada in productions until the Music Hall opened, when she was appointed director of its ballet, and is now associate producer of the stage shows you see there. She is a slender, blonde young woman, and is excellent proof that ballet dancing does not overdevelop one's body which is a common belief.

On the contrary, correct ballet instruction develops suppleness in the toes, arches, ankles, knees, hips, waist, back and arms. One eventually acquires perfect control of the body which creates a fine sense of balance and timing, and gives grace to every movement you make.

Begin Young
The ideal age to start instruction for professional ballet is nine years. No girl over fourteen years should start ballet dancing with the serious intention of becoming a professional dancer. But any girl over fourteen years of age may take lessons for self-improvement which usually requires two years of training.

Explains Exercises
Ballet training consists of well balanced exercises which should be done very regularly under expert instruction. The exercises are usually done at a bar in a school, but they may be practiced at home while you hold on to the back of a chair.

One of the simplest exercises to start with is known as the Plié. Hold on to a chair with one hand. Place your feet together so the heels are touching and the toes are well turned out to each side. Gradually bend the knees, forcing them well out to each side, and lower the body gradually until your buttocks rest on your heels which are raised from the floor. The weight of your body falls on your toes. Your back must be kept perfectly straight. Then gradually straighten your knees as you rise, until they are close together in a standing position.

Send for Ballet Exercises
The Plié is called the first position of ballet. There are five in all, which are explained in a new leaflet which has been arranged through the cooperation of Miss Rogge. The leaflet also describes four excellent exercises which help to develop supple thighs and legs, and encourage beautiful posture.

This novel "Ballet Exercises" leaflet may be had free upon request, providing you enclose a self-addressed envelope bearing a three-cent stamp to cover mailing charge. Address your request to Miss Lindsay, care of this paper.

Learning Words Is Useless Unless Meanings are Taught

BY ANGELO PATRI
"In the beginning was the word." Most of our teaching begins with the word. A great deal of it ends there and is, consequently, useless. Not until the word has been clothed in experience is it valuable. Yet many of our children attending school dutifully, for the most precious years of their lives, are given words and more words but no experiences to help to give them the learning value of the word.

How many children think that if they know the right answer to the teacher's question that they know all that is necessary? How many teachers believe their whole duty lies in getting those right answers, in setting down in terms of per cent the results of their questioning? How many schools are concerned about the class averages they obtain, the number of pupils who pass the state examinations, content if they stand high on the list? You have only to look at your own school for an answer.

You have only to think a moment to know how futile this kind of teaching and learning is. Learn a recipe for making bread, recite it, pass a written examination about it. Still, like many a teacher of domestic science, you have got to learn how to make a loaf of bread one can eat. The word must be clothed in experience if it is empty of value.

I am not asking to have the cow brought into the schoolroom in order to teach a child that milk comes from her to him, but a visit to the pasture and the barn, the milk plant and the milkman would be very useful and put meaning into a whole series of words that for most children remain sounds.

Experience need not always be

Fails to Make Hand Because Of Right Play

BY ELY CULBERTSON
Usually expert play can guard against bad breaks, but I must admit that sometimes everything goes wrong for a player, no matter how skillfully he plays. And every once in a while a player will fail to make a hand because he made the right play.

A typical case was today's hand, played by a very expert South.

The bidding, with both sides vulnerable, is of little importance, since both North and South overbid enthusiastically. They arrived at seven diamonds—not a good contract.

A trump lead would have given declarer quite a bit to think about, but West chose to lead the king of spades.

Dummy ruffed and declarer counted his trumps: three spade trumps in dummy, four trumps, two hearts, and four clubs. The total was right, but the question of getting back to his own hand often enough was troublesome.

He got there the first time with the king of hearts and ruffed a second spade. The eight of clubs was taken by declarer's ten and his last spade was led.

Now declarer had to make a decision. One line of play would be to ruff low, cash the ace of trumps, and return with the king of clubs, to exhaust the trumps. A singleton club, in that case, would defeat him. The other plan was to ruff with the ace of trumps and return a trump. By this method a singleton club would occur on him no worry, but a 4-1 trump split would be fatal.

Boiled down, it came to this: only if one defender had a singleton in a minor suit would there be trouble. Which singleton was more likely? He did not have to be much of a mathematician to decide that there was less chance that one player had a singleton in the six clubs outstanding than in the five diamonds.

He therefore ruffed the third spade with a low trump and cashed the trump ace. Then he led the jack of clubs, overtaking with his king, and West ruffed!

Now, had South not been so expert he might have ruffed the third spade with the ace of trumps, and then led the trumps out. This would have been a bad play, but it would have worked. But South is not downhearted. He knows (as every expert does) that he will gain more in the long run by playing with, rather than against, the odds.

ing. If he learns about a process, a material, or a place, give him an opportunity to get close enough to the idea to tie it to other experiences, or to put meaning into it.

Action is the essential element in children's growth. They must move, act, or do something to life if they are to grow and remain alive. We take these creatures of action, at a time when their learning power is at its peak, and force them to sit still, for the best part of their day, and learn words. We are sometimes stupid about education and its values, although we spend more money and do more talking than any people on earth about that subject.

Adolescent boys and girls, starting about the age of twelve and continuing until the children are self-sustaining, must have active school work. When they are forced to listen, write, recite, read—all with words, without any opportunity for creative work—they become rebellious, destructive and disorderly. Their growing time is being wasted.

Let this be for yourself. Ask the boys and girls of these years in any school in the land what they can do, not what they know, and see what results you get. Study to see how useful these children make themselves outside of school—in the home, the community, and the nation. Then judge the values of the school as they accordingly.

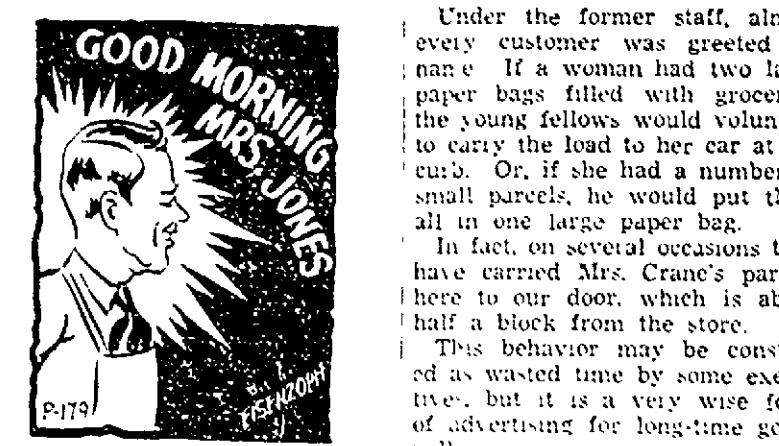

What is youth is a national sin.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

Today's CASE RECORD illustrates a critical point in modern business psychology. It can prove the deciding factor between bankruptcy and success. Modern competition is so keen that mistakes such as the one described below may ruin a 10-year supremacy in the retail field. You high school students who employ these CASE RECORDS in class might profitably paste this one in your scrapbook for further deliberation.

CASE P-179: Calvin T., aged 31, is manager of our neighborhood A & P store.
"I don't understand the shortsightedness of some business firms," Mrs. Crane exclaimed.
"For several years this A & P store has dominated the grocery business in our neighborhood, not just because of price but because the manager and his clerks were very gracious, considerate of customers and good looking men.

"Now the A & P company has transferred Calvin and all his clerks. The new men are strangers to this community. They don't know our names. They don't have any personalities, either, which counts a great deal in any business dealing with housewives."

"Why, if the company wanted to make changes, didn't it leave a few of the former clerks so we would feel at home in the store? Now it seems so cool and strange, despite the politeness of the new clerks, that a large number of women are patronizing other stores."

In this modern age where keen competition has almost eliminated the marked differences in price or quality which used to be our big sales points, we are finding that the personality of the salesman is growing more important than ever in retail business.

I have previously mentioned that the average consumers are little whiff of brand of gasoline they use, which insurance firm they buy from, providing the latter are among the well known companies.

In the years to come this reaction will be even more typical of the retail buyer. Nowadays we find that the determining factor in the sale is often the personality of the salesman, or other items such as the location of the store.

The Psychology of Buying
Among these psychological factors determining our buying behavior are even such things as free parking facilities. Again, if a store is on the far side of a dangerous street crossing, we will not send our children there, providing there is another store which doesn't involve such danger.

Parents will even send their children clear around the block, rather than patronize a store directly across the street, in order to avoid this traffic hazard to their youngsters.

Mrs. Crane pointed out a dangerous situation when she said the store now seems cool and strange. That is true, for I have noted the same effect.

Under the former staff, almost every customer was greeted by name. If a woman had two large paper bags filled with groceries, the young fellows would volunteer to carry the load to her car at the curb. Or, if she had a number of small parcels, he would put them all in one large paper bag.

In fact, on several occasions they have carried Mrs. Crane's parcels here to our door, which is about half a block from the store.

This behavior may be construed as wasted time by some executives, but it is a very wise form of advertising for long-time goodwill.

There is a basic law of psychology to the effect that people like to return to a situation where they were formerly pleased, but wish to avoid persons or places where they have felt friendless, humiliated, ignored or placed on the defensive.

Next door to this A & P store in question, is also a National Tea grocery. It never used to dominate the grocery trade in this neighborhood, although it could match prices with A & P. Now, however, the National Tea clerk seem more familiar to customers than the strangers in the A & P, so an increasing number of patrons are shifting to the National Tea store.

In making a change of staff, therefore, it is usually wise to leave enough of the old force to retain the former friendly and familiar atmosphere.

RULE NO. 1
To have "lots of men" in comparison to the number of girls is rule number one in making plans for a party. Fewer men than girls will do at all—not even for a wedding party.

"Must the number of bridesmaids and ushers be the same?" the answer is no—not so far as the professional in church is concerned. But if there are to be few ushers and many bridesmaids, extra men must of course be invited to the various parties given before the wedding, and however many may be necessary to make the number even at the bridal table of there is to be one at the wedding.

For this reason it is simpler to have an even number of ushers and bridesmaids. To an inquiry, which might perhaps be included in this subject, asking whether extra men invited to sit at the bridal table should be given ushers' presents, the answer is NO.

Dressing for the Country Club
Dear Mrs. Post: Will you please tell me what my husband and I should wear to a tea dance at a country club? The hours are from four to half past seven. Also, if we decided to dress in simple dinner clothes, could we go on our way to a dinner, which engagement we have had for some time for that same evening?

Answer: Ordinarily guests wear what are known as country clothes to a tea dance at a country club. But it will be quite all right to arrive very late—after six o'clock—with the man who glorifies life or her.

But aren't you idealizing and romanticizing this first love too much? Every young girl goes off of her head a bit about her first sweetheart and sees in him a Prince Charming. She is wildly excited over him, just as she is wildly excited over her first party dress, and it is quite true that she never experiences these same emotions again. No other dress and no other man ever thrill her in just the same way. But after a while the sense enough to realize that her emotions belong to her time of life, not the dress or the man. Isn't that the way with you?

One Is Beloved

BY LOUISE PLATT HAUCK

Yesterday: Eric returns to New York, leaving Sue to struggle with her problem. She wonders if she can relinquish love for duty.

Chapter 27
The Choice
"If the cases were reversed how long would Bob stick to me?" Sue inquired of herself. "Why, when Cicely was here there were times when he seemed actually to reproach me for the inconvenience she caused him! He'd deceived me about her, he'd fallen in love, married, parted from a wife . . . and it was so unimportant to him that he'd never told me!"

"I played fair! I warned him before we were married that I might meet the right man, fall in love with him, and Bob laughed! Well, let him laugh now! He'll be hurt," she mused more seriously. "He'll be badly upset for days—for weeks. But he'll find consolation in the sympathy of the town. Even if he lets me divorce him, it will come out later that I've married Eric and everyone will know I treated Bob badly. Allen will try his best to make it up to Bob. Barbara will maybe Barbara and Bob . . . stranger things than that have happened!"

She sighed heavily. "If he'd only suspect—quarrel with me about Eric! I, we could discuss it, even angrily. But Bob's like a trustful child. It has never occurred to him that his wife—his wife—could be other than faithful with him, anything else but entirely happy! The unconscious egotism of it, the appealing confidence! I turn between the two. But there's Eric to think of, as well as Bob."

And at that beloved name, her senses swam. Firelight room, Allen, Barbara, Bob—all were swept away as she imagined herself once again held close in Eric's arms, listening to the pounding of a heart which beat for her alone.

How she knew that to be true, she could not have told, but knew it she did. Eric's covering of sophistication had something shy and sweet and hitherto untouched. It was a calling to deep, between her and Eric Farraday. It was the traveler in a strange land experiencing the shuddering delight of hearing his own tongue spoken after weary days of dismay, bewilderment. It was discord resolved into harmony, it was voyage-worn ships making harbor at the close of a long season, it was cool water in the desert, flame in the snow, the deliciousness of food after famine.

It might not last, it could not last—for Eric; but even to experience it briefly was an enchantment she had no right to deny herself or Eric.

She, little Sue Davenport, with her odd dark face and her unimportant mind, was a worker of miracles. Out of all the women whom Eric had met—and they had been many, and clever, and beautiful—she had been chosen to turn the key which let love into his being. Oh, marvelous, oh, wonderful! What, in comparison to this, was the keeping up of that "satisfying relationship" of which Bob had spoken.

Nothing! Less than nothing! Tomorrow—or at least the day after Christmas—she would tell Bob; explain quite kindly and fully that duty, after all, was not only a personal matter, but a relative matter, that her duty to Eric's genius far outweighed anything she might once have promised Bob Trenton, of the Treadon Shoes.

Sue put the screen in front of the fire snapped off the one lamp she had kept burning, paused by the window for a last look at the river, lighted only by the stars tonight, and took her way up to bed. Bob was fathoms deep among his own pillows.

'Only You'
Christmas eve found Sue with her plans made. She and Bob would celebrate the holiday as usual, with Pats and Allen coming for dinner the night before and remaining until late Christmas afternoon. And then late had gone, and Bob and Sue were alone, she meant to talk to him quietly, calmly about a divorce.

She had not reached her decision without many heartaches. It was as if two personalities strove within her: the tender, loyal girl who had married her husband, honestly confessing that the sort of love she had dreamed of surrendering as a bride; and the new, slightly ruthless woman, made ruthless by her devouring passion for Eric Farraday.

Eric's letters arrived daily, spurring her to immediate action, steadying her oft-times wavering plans.

She shopped as usual for Christmas gifts: a luxurious evening coat for Pats, who had hinted strongly for books and silk socks for Allen; for Bob—she had hesitated over this, dishing the impersonality of such a present—yet dishing still more to choose anything more intimate—a carved jade paperweight for his office.

She had never to ask Bob for money for her personal needs. The generous allowance he had made her when they were married not only sufficed but kept a comfortable surplus in the bank. She was glad of this. It was, she reasoned, her money because she had saved it, therefore she need not scruple to use it for traveling expenses when she left St. Joseph.

As she drove home from a last moment shopping trip late on the afternoon of Christmas Eve, she felt that everything was done she could do to make this occasion a successful one. Holly hung in the windows, a gay wreath of it on the front door. The pantry was stocked with delicacies for tomorrow, the great turkey ready for its chestnut stuffing. Two of the guest rooms had been prepared for Allen and his wife.

The servants had been remembered, the trees for postman, milkman and various others were neatly sealed in their tiny envelopes. Because snow had fallen that morning she wore her galoshes. Her rubber soles made no sound as she went upstairs and into her own sitting room to deposit her last purchases. The door was slightly ajar and from within came the murmur of voices.

"Pats must have come early," she thought, and with a light hand swung the door gently open. The tableau which met her eye froze her where she stood. Bob was seated in a corner of the couch, his elbows on his knees, his face in his hands. Before him Patsy knelt, her half bare arms pulling his face down to hers. "Poor, poor boy," she was crying. "My poor darling Bob!" From those deep, desperate fingers came a hoarse murmur. "Pats! Pats! There's only you . . ."

Violent Love Affair
Noiselessly Sue withdrew, gaining her bedroom without the absorbed part knowing of her presence. Her face was flaming, her palms were wet.

So! While she had been wrestling with her conscience over the coming separation with Bob, he had been indulging in a violent love affair with this what hurt, this was what stung her pride! With Patsy of all people! Patsy whom Bob had called "cheap" against whose greenness he had warned Sue, at whose unkindness to Allen he had railed.

And now, in Sue's own sitting room, dressed in the very gown Sue had bought for her, this scene was being enacted!

As always when in the grip of emotion, she walked to the window and stared out. She stood there a long time, not hearing Allen's arrival, not even knowing when Patsy and Bob went downstairs. Suddenly she threw back her head with the gesture of one freeing himself of a heavy burden.

"This certainly simplifies things! I was a fool to let it upset me. Why it makes everything perfect! Bob will give me a divorce, and I can come home with Patsy. Allen, Allen, will be free of her at last! Oh, it couldn't be better!"

"Sue!" It was Bob shouting below.

If Your Child Has A NASTY COLD

Relieve the Misery As Most Mothers Do Rub chest, throat, and back thoroughly with Vicks VapoRub at bedtime. Then spread a thick layer on the chest and cover with a warm cloth. Right away VapoRub goes to work to relieve the misery. VapoRub brings double relief because of its action. It acts both as a stimulant and a medicated vapor. Its medicated action penetrates the surface skin; its soothing vapors are breathed direct to irritated air passages. Try it. You'll find that often by morning the misery of the cold is gone.

Flowers FIRST for Your Valentine!

Florists Offer Gorgeous Displays for Valentines

The approach of Valentine's Day means that spring cannot be too far distant, and there's nothing like big displays of beautiful flowers to accentuate this idea. As a result, florists in this vicinity are showing some of the best displays in years to satisfy all flower lovers—Valentine buyers or not.

There is no obligation to buy on the part of those who visit various floral headquarters. Probably no other producer gets more real pleasure out of his own product than does the florist, and he gets an additional sense of satisfaction out of the joy others experience on seeing the flowers and plants which grow under his care.

Although the florists are well stocked for the annual "sweetheart" occasion, Valentine gift-givers will be wise to make selections as soon as possible to be sure of getting the choicest flowers and plants.

Daffodils Are Essence of Spring

Golden daffodils and jonquils distill the essence of spring. With a bouquet of these gay blooms in the living room or on the office desk one can join with Wordsworth in saying: "And then my heart with pleasure fills and dances with the daffodils."

A modernistic uplift of plain spring green pottery is lovely for these bright colored flowers. By cutting their stems at different lengths the blooms stand at various levels so that the face of each individual flower is in full view. A few white and cream colored narcissi give variety to the arrangement illustrated here and the one large burnt orange tulip placed near the base adds a rich dark note to the color scale and helps balance the apparent light weight of the flowers above.

Arrangements of this type made with a variety of tones of the same

Gay Flowers for Valentine Day

A heart-shaped corsage of violets is most appropriate for the Valentine dance or party. The violets harmonize well with most gowns and are particularly lovely on white materials such as the brocade shown in the illustration.

Cut flowers and corsages of every kind have long been popular Valentine expressions. Probably the most traditional expression of this type is a bouquet of red roses, which are popularly thought to be a token of true affection. On the other hand there are a dozen or more other flowers which can be given for this occasion, and many of them will be better appreciated because they are more useful. This is especially true of flowers in pink and yellow colors which are more easily worn or used to decorate the home.

Flower stylists announce that corsages of spray carnations will be very popular this year. While the red blooms will be in great favor, the white, light or dark pink, yellow or the new carnations with candy stripes will be preferred by many.

If you are giving a corsage, be sure to ask the florist to make it of a Valentine day design, he will have many suggestions.

The Modern Language of Flowers—When a Friend Returns Home

When a friend returns home after being away for some time, possibly after being confined to a hospital, a bouquet of cheery flowers or a potted plant will breathe the message "Welcome home." Even if the house or apartment has been closed for a long while the fresh flowers will immediately make it alive and home-like, and your friend will appreciate your thoughtfulness expressed in such a novel way.

Tricks Take Precedence Over Fancy Lace in Current Crop Of Valentine's Day Greetings

BY NELL CHAMBERLAIN
Tricky gadgets on this year's crop of valentines that cause eyes to roll, arms to wave, and red hearts to pop up out of nowhere are taking prominence on the sales counters over the sticky, sentimental, lace concoctions of yesteryear. Clever devices that make use of a play on words to put across the sender's sentiments, run riot over the colorful little cards and folders, many of them putting the "punch" line on the inside of the folder and relying on the turn of the page to put the "kick" in the greeting.

An authority on the subject of valentines who says that the American valentine-card industry is 100 years old this year, maintains that they go in cycles. He believes the lace ones are most popular in times of war and worry, and that the comics reach their height in boom times.

Because this is leap year, valentines are giving the girls a better than even break by putting out some gentle reminders of the feminine prerogative of pursuing the elusive male this year. One of the cleverest of these found in a local store had this verse inscribed: "I ain't no gal for mushy talk; I wouldn't mention love; But I don't mind admittin', You're the fondest man I'm of."

Date Suggestions
Another definitely puts the question of a date right up to the man with a clock with moveable hands and another with a moveable center section containing such phrases as "In the shade of the old apple tree," "Down by the old mill stream" and "Little church around the corner." The verse says, "I'll see you anytime you say; I'll meet you any place or day; Just let me know the hour of meeting; By sending back this little greeting."

For the adolescent boy, there is one containing a picture of a baby in a crib under the inscription, "Don't treat me as if I were still in the cradle," and on the next page a youth with a sprouting moustache saying "Today I am a man."

Lena Resident Has Unusual Stuffed Animal Collection

BY CLARA HUSSONG
Let the word get around that you are collecting something and you will be showered with specimens from all over the country. At least, that has been the experience of Jack Kinzinger, Lena, Wis., whose hobby is collecting and mounting birds, animals and fish.

Although most of his collection is made up of local species, he owns several specimens which came from far-off places. A Chinese cormorant, a large water bird which in its home country is employed to catch fish, was one which interested a group of us who visited Mr. Kinzinger's place recently. A ring and string attached to the bird's neck prevents it from swallowing its catch. Another interesting bird in the collection is the beautiful California quail, a relative of our bob-white.

Has Many Ducks
His prize specimens are a group of passenger pigeons mounted on a tree stub. These birds, extinct now for many years, passed into extinction so quickly and so mysteriously that comparatively few specimens were gathered for museum collections. Only a few of the larger museums possess any and consequently they are highly valued.

Mr. Kinzinger told us the story of how he obtained his pigeons. Someone, seeing his collection, mentioned that he had some kind of bird up in his attic, collected many years ago and almost forgotten. Taken out of their newspaper wrappings they proved to be the passenger pigeons. They had "kept" marvelously well and their coloring and general appearance was much better than the mounted specimens I had seen in a large city museum several years ago.

Practically every species of wild duck which is known to occur in the state is included in the collection. The blue and snow geese, pileated woodpecker, raven, king rail and the small blue heron are among the rarer birds seldom seen by most of us but which are collected in this region. Because he knew just where each was taken, Mr. Kinzinger's information proved valuable to those of us who are collecting data on the birds of the state.

In the animals display we found nearly every native mammal larger than a rat. A skunk group, showing the mother and two young, seems to disprove the theory that our skunks are of two forms, the broad-striped and the narrow-striped, because the mother and the young in the latter are albino porcupine received many admiring comments.

Squirrels, foxes, coveys, bears, deer, badgers, raccoons and wildcats were grouped all around the room. The collection included a black squirrel and a black raccoon. Each animal, or each family group, was mounted on its own stand so that the arrangement of the display could be changed easily.

Deer Died in Battle
Two pairs of interlocked deer horns attached to the skulls proved an interesting exhibit. The deer must have fought to the death because they were found dead and brought to Mr. Kinzinger. Incidentally, he is his own taxidermist and in the case of the deer he severed the heads and boiled off the flesh.

A week-old fawn and another three-week-old one were admired and photographed by our group.

'INDOOR GIRL'
Kay Williams, 23-year-old artist's model described by magazine illustrator Arthur William Brown as a "typical indoor girl," has been chosen "The Most Popular Model of the Year" by the Society of Illustrators in New York City. She will spend two weeks in Florida as mascot of their annual golf tournament.

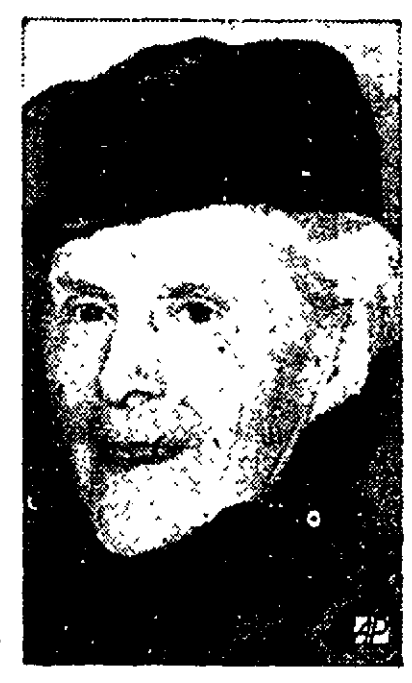

One was killed by a dog and the other run down by a car. When we came to the fox group we were given the following interesting information:

"Years ago red foxes were a deep tawny red with black legs. Nowadays they are pale tawny with only a little darker legs. I haven't seen a black-legged fox for years."

On his walls the collector displays a number of varieties of fish, including pike, pickerel, and muskellunge. In several cases two fish of the same species were displayed side by side. One was bright yellowish-green in color and the other a dirty gray-green. The difference in the waters which they inhabit explains this difference in coloring.

Fish Caught in Bay
The fish caught in Green Bay or in clear-watered lakes were brighter colored than those caught in muddy lakes. I have heard trout fishermen say that when seining a trout caught in a region with which they are familiar they could invariably name the stream from which it was taken, but I never believed it until now.

Those of us who know the various regions where the specimens were collected were most pleased to hear the names of the places mentioned. Many of the collections were made in recent years and it heartened us to know that even the rarer birds and animals are still found in spots we often visit. Maybe if we keep our eyes open we'll run across king rails, blue geese or wildcats.

No country would dream of adopting this system if it were in the position of the United States. For exchange control is necessary only when a country does not have the means of buying abroad the things that it needs to buy. When a country is in our position, possessing an inexhaustible stock of gold, attracting to itself free funds from all over the world, the idea of instituting exchange control is an absurdity. It is like a fat man taking a cure for undernourishment.

Why, then, does the Vandenberg bill propose to vest in the new board the inquisitorial powers, the vast, complex regulatory mechanism, the immense overhead bureaucratic supervision of private transactions, that are employed elsewhere only by impoverished countries, by countries under a dictatorship and by countries at war? I really do not know why Mr. Vandenberg thinks such powers need to be vested in another board in Washington.

But perhaps the answer is to be found in Section 13 of his bill, which, believe it or not, provides for the abolition of the tariff and the substitution of embargoes "to prevent the importation" or articles "at an import price" which is "less than the reasonable cost of production of a like or similar domestic article, in the case of articles other than agricultural commodities." The reader may think that Mr. Vandenberg merely wants to raise the tariff. He will be mistaken. Mr. Vandenberg wants to prevent imports. And he means to prevent them not merely by having the board raise the tariff rates as high as may be necessary, but, if this does not prevent imports, to impose "import restrictions" which he describes as "limitations, prohibitions, charges and exactions other than duties imposed on importation or imposed for the regulation of imports."

Embargo Policy Would Cause Currency Disorders
Since he believes in such a policy, it is perhaps understandable why he thinks it necessary to get the country ready for exchange control. For this policy of the embargo would not only wreck foreign trade but would throw the currency and financial markets of the United States and elsewhere into such disorder that it probably would be necessary, even for us, to establish government control of all exchange transactions. Thus Section 11 becomes intelligible in the light of Section 13. For Section 13 might succeed in producing the calamity that Section 11 would then be needed to deal with.

This leads us into Section 14 which provides that the United States should descend to the level of carrying on its foreign trade by barter agreements. After Section 13, which would do much to destroy normal commerce, Section 14 would undoubtedly be necessary. For this country, having wrecked its foreign trade, would be landed with unsalable surpluses of all sorts of commodities. Mr. Vandenberg's new board would then have plenty to do trying to get rid of these surpluses by barter agreements.

So Mr. Vandenberg offers us as a commercial policy an embargo on imports of non-agricultural products, the prospect of exchange control, and the conduct of our commerce by the primitive method of barter. And this, I suppose, is to be done under the impression that Mr. Vandenberg is saving the American system of free enterprise

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMAN

Mr. Vandenberg's Pup

Mr. Hull has had two successes in the past ten days. His trade-agreement policies have been endorsed by the House committee. But even better, Mr. Hull's most formidable opponent, Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, has ventured to introduce a bill (S. 3238) defining his ideas of the alternative, his ideas of what the commercial policy of the United States should be if it rejects Mr. Hull's policy, and of how the policy should be put into effect.

If Mr. Hull can now persuade the Republicans to read and appreciate Mr. Vandenberg's bill, he will win his fight with a landslide vote. Mr. Hull's only difficulty will be to make the Republicans believe that a leading candidate of their party is sponsoring the program that Mr. Vandenberg is sponsoring. Mr. Hull may even have difficulty in making Mr. Vandenberg himself believe it.

Sets Up Machinery for Exchange Control
The Vandenberg bill abolishes the tariff commission and sets up a new agency, composed of six men, called the Foreign Trade Board. In this board are vested not only all the powers of the tariff commission but also the powers of the State Department, as they deal with commercial treaties. What must interest us, however, are the new powers that Mr. Vandenberg would vest in this board.

They began in Section 11, which gives the board the right to compel "every person within the United States" (meaning individuals, partnerships, corporations, banks, trust companies and so forth) to produce all books, contracts, letters or other papers relating to the following subjects: any transaction in foreign exchange, the transfer of credit or payment between American and foreign banks, the export or import of securities and of gold and silver.

Whether or not Mr. Vandenberg realizes it, this is a proposal to establish the machinery of exchange control. The Vandenberg bill does not propose to use this machinery right away. But it would set up the machinery by which the board of six men could, under a slightly broader interpretation of its powers, control every kind of financial transaction across the frontiers of the United States. Now such machinery as Senator Vandenberg wishes to establish here exists, of course, in many other countries. But no country, excepting only Soviet Russia, has ever willingly adopted it. Elsewhere in time of peace it has been adopted only by debtor countries, like Germany and Italy, which, needing to import more than they were able to pay for, have been constrained to adopt exchange control in order to conserve funds for foreign purchases. Only the most lunatic of the Nazis have ever pretended that the system was anything but a horrid necessity; every sensible German and Italian has deplored the fact that his country had to adopt such a system. In Britain and France the system of exchange control was not put into effect until the war compelled them to conserve their resources for the purchase of essentials.

No country would dream of adopting this system if it were in the position of the United States. For exchange control is necessary only when a country does not have the means of buying abroad the things that it needs to buy. When a country is in our position, possessing an inexhaustible stock of gold, attracting to itself free funds from all over the world, the idea of instituting exchange control is an absurdity. It is like a fat man taking a cure for undernourishment.

Why, then, does the Vandenberg bill propose to vest in the new board the inquisitorial powers, the vast, complex regulatory mechanism, the immense overhead bureaucratic supervision of private transactions, that are employed elsewhere only by impoverished countries, by countries under a dictatorship and by countries at war? I really do not know why Mr. Vandenberg thinks such powers need to be vested in another board in Washington.

Embargo Policy Would Cause Currency Disorders
Since he believes in such a policy, it is perhaps understandable why he thinks it necessary to get the country ready for exchange control. For this policy of the embargo would not only wreck foreign trade but would throw the currency and financial markets of the United States and elsewhere into such disorder that it probably would be necessary, even for us, to establish government control of all exchange transactions. Thus Section 11 becomes intelligible in the light of Section 13. For Section 13 might succeed in producing the calamity that Section 11 would then be needed to deal with.

This leads us into Section 14 which provides that the United States should descend to the level of carrying on its foreign trade by barter agreements. After Section 13, which would do much to destroy normal commerce, Section 14 would undoubtedly be necessary. For this country, having wrecked its foreign trade, would be landed with unsalable surpluses of all sorts of commodities. Mr. Vandenberg's new board would then have plenty to do trying to get rid of these surpluses by barter agreements.

So Mr. Vandenberg offers us as a commercial policy an embargo on imports of non-agricultural products, the prospect of exchange control, and the conduct of our commerce by the primitive method of barter. And this, I suppose, is to be done under the impression that Mr. Vandenberg is saving the American system of free enterprise

low. "We're all waiting for you. Coming down soon?"

"In five minutes," she returned composedly.

When she joined them around the fire below, she fairly sparkled. She had run a wet comb through her curls and they framed her face charmingly. Her lips were crimson, her cheeks bore traces of unusual color. Her eyes shone as they had not done in years.

"Golly, Sue, what have you done to yourself?" Allen asked admiringly.

She answered gayly, stole a glance toward Bob. He seemed as usual save for a certain look of strain about his eyes. Perhaps he, too, had been fighting a battle with conscience, she thought a little pityingly. How absurd that she couldn't put an end to the situation now, in a few fortnight words.

"You love Pats, Bob, and Allen

If it were not obvious that Mr. Vandenberg is an innocent man, one might wonder how he ever came to sponsor a proposal so utterly alien to American principles, so naively acquiescent in the very worst practices of the age we live in. Mr. Vandenberg cannot possibly mean seriously to commit his party and his country to the economic philosophy which his bill describes. He cannot have understood what he was doing when he accepted these ideas.

But this time somebody has certainly sold him a pup.

Bakers, Kimberly Defeat Ashland

Elm Trees Hang Up Tenth Straight League Victory

SCORE IS 50 TO 39

Squad Will Travel to Sturgeon Bay Tuesday Night

ELM Tree Bakers hung up their tenth straight victory as they downed Ashland, 50-39, at Armory D Saturday night and retained second place in the Wisconsin Michigan League.

With Kimberly also turning back the Ashland club, it looks like a real battle is in store for Appleton basketball fans when the Papermakers face Elm Tree cagers at the armory Thursday, Feb. 29. Before this battle comes off, the Bakers and the Papermakers will have to take care of Rhinelander, due in this neighborhood Feb. 24 and 25.

The Bakers stopped the north-easters in a close battle. Ashland presented a team that showed class in every department, handling the ball and passing like a bunch of veterans with a deadly eye for the hoop whenever Bakers let them open for shots. Kenneth Brown, who is property of the St. Louis Cardinal basketball team, showed Appleton fans he's just as much at home on basketball court as he is on the diamond by sinking six buckets and one free throw and filled in nicely for "Tweet" Jensen, who didn't put in his appearance. Brown was aided in his scoring spree by Ashland's rugged guard Bernard, who also came through with 13 points.

Elm Tree scattered their points evenly with Lloyd picking up nine points on three field goals and three free throws, followed by Catlin with eight points on three buckets and two free tries. Several times during the first half the Bakers found themselves trailing by a couple of points and at one time in the second quarter by five points. In the second half, the Bakers inserted their best lineup of Lillie and Godhardt at forwards, Krause at center, Catlin and Wagner taking over the guard posts. When the third quarter was over, Elm Tree had stepped it up to 36 points to 30 for Ashland. In the fourth quarter, Griebhaber substituted frequently as the dough-boys continued to roll in points.

The Bakers will travel to Sturgeon Bay Tuesday night and then will be idle until Saturday night when the strong Hilbert squad will invade the armory.

St. John Cagers In Close Victory

Little Chute Team Beats St. Peter at Oshkosh Friday Evening

Oshkosh — St. John Catholic High school cagers of Little Chute defeated St. Peter here Friday night, 24 to 23. The win helped St. John continue in second place in the Valley Catholic standings and in a position to overhaul Menasha St. Mary's if St. John can cop when the two meet at Menasha.

Oshkosh led by 6 to 4 at the end of the first quarter and at the half the score was sewed up at 9-4. Early in the third period, the locals took an 18 to 14 lead, but St. John closed the gap to 18 to 17 at the end of the quarter. The score was tied at 23-23 in the last minute and C. Vandenhoevel, Little Chute center, was fouled and made the free throw to win the ball game.

Busha led the Keymen in scoring with seven points on three buckets and a charity loss. A mix which the Flying Dutchmen seem to have over St. Peter's still persisted. It seems as though one member of the St. John's team has an "on" night when the team plays the Keymen. Friday, it was the turn of H. Vandenhoevel, who ordinarily is not a high scorer. He made six field goals and one free throw for 13 points.

In a preliminary last night the reserves of St. John's won from the local seconds by 16 to 10. Rottman made seven of the 10 points for St. Peter's, while R. Van Assen made six for the visitors.

LAWRENCE college cagers split on their weekend trip in Midwest conference basketball competition when they defeated Knox, 35 to 25, Saturday night at Galesburg, Ill. The previous night the Vikings dropped a 32 to 22 decision to Beloit. The win at Knox evened matters with the Siwashers who defeated the Vikes here in the season's opener.

Lawrence's next appearance in Midwest play will be Saturday here when Grinnell visits the Viking campus for the first time in their athletic history. Grinnell is in second place and is competing in the Midwest its first season. On Monday, Feb. 19, Lawrence will play at Ripon.

Ripon and Grinnell continue to pace the Midwest with the Redmen holding a slight advantage due to having played more games. The Pioneers will have a chance to even matters this week, however, when they play two games while Ripon shows in one.

Wallie Cape broke out with a scoring rash as Lawrence defeated Knox Saturday night. The veteran forward, without a heavy defensive assignment for a change, was free to roam and dropped six goals and two free throws for 14 points.

Lawrence used a 2-3 zone defense against the Siwashers and it had them completely stopped. Efnor, Knox' star forward, was held to only nine points, one of his lowest totals of the season.

Masterson was used at center for Lawrence and got seven points. Lingle again got his share, nine, while Ken Buesing scored three, two on his first basket in several games. The half score was 18 to 12 for the Vikes.

Papermakers Get Going In the Final Stanza Of Battle

HALF SCORE IS 21-16

Barrage of Baskets in Last 3 1-2 Minutes Results in 11 Points

KIMBERLY — Kimberly A. A. cagers defeated Ashland here Sunday in a Wisconsin Michigan league game by a score of 43 to 30. The visitors showed good ball handling and excelled in long shots. The Papermakers had a 14 to 8 advantage at the quarter and showed a 5-point lead at the half, 21 to 16.

Ashland kept pace in the third quarter by well placed long shots trailing by a 28 to 23 score. The Papermakers let loose with an 11-point scoring barrage in the last three and a half minutes that bewildered Ashland.

Brown and Giese of the visitors sank long shots to grab a 4-point lead. The Papermakers worked the ball around fast with Hofkins and Bowman under the net to score. E. Vander Velden scored on Bernard's personal but the shifty visitor came right back to hook a difficult side line shot. Vander Velden and Bowman countered with neat tries and Bowman converted on a gift on Bernard's foul.

The visitors could not get in close with the Papermakers showing a tight defense. Giese looped one from way out. Van Dyke and N. Gossens countered with buckets to give Kimberly a 14 to 8 lead at the quarter.

Kuzzy and De Brynn made good on gifts with Madervich's long try rolling around the rim and in. De Brynn pulled a sleeper on the Papermakers but Hofkins and Hamann, working fast, each scored on setups. Hamann scored on a charity while Bowman converted on two charities on Brown's personal.

Madervich tipped in a rebound at half time with Kimberly holding a small lead, 21 to 16.

The Papermakers played defensive ball throughout and were not cutting loose. The visitors were seldom under the net having to score the hard way from the floor.

With three and half minutes of play remaining, the Papermakers said "Let's go" and turned on the heat. Bowman scored twice. Hamann, Van Dyke and LeMay once with Buck ending play by sinking a charity on Giese's foul.

In the second game of a series, the Merchants defeated the A. A. Reserves, 28 to 17. The standings are now one and one.

Wednesday evening the A. A. cagers meet Kadins Jewelers of Milwaukee at the clubhouse. The game will be played after Lenten services at the Holy Name church. The Milwaukee squad is coached by C. O. Penwell of Milwaukee Teachers.

Appleton Six in Overtime Victory

Defeats Menasha. 4 to 3; John Stoeger Gets Winning Goal

Appleton hockey team won a 4 to 3 victory over Menasha in a 10-minute overtime Sunday afternoon at Jones park. It was one of the features of the afternoon's winter sports program and was a Valley league game.

The ice wasn't the best and skating was tedious work. Appleton's reserve strength again counted and the 13 players tired the Menashans. After Appleton scored in the overtime it played defense hockey to the end.

Menasha grabbed a 4 to 3 lead in the opening period when Stepanski scored in 4 minutes. Buysyk in 10 and Braun registered for Appleton in 16. L. Brum got an assist on the latter score.

In the second period, Braun evened the score for Appleton with a goal in 6 minutes and with Tacy assisting. Cole got a lone shot in the second period after 11 minutes making the score 3-2 for Menasha.

Appleton tied the score at 3-3 in the last period when Paul Van Rossum pushed in a rebound after 11 minutes. Menasha drew a penalty when Markonski checked into the boards.

The winning goal came in the overtime off the club of John Stoeger after 5 minutes.

The lineups:

Appleton: Ralph Nofke G. Tom Reider D. Elmer Reider F. Frank Markonski Harry Braun C. Ben Stepanski Leo Brum W. Dave Buysyk Rolly Trapp W. Bremmer

Spares: Appleton—John Stoeger, Joe Kupler, Paul Van Rossum, Ken Forester, Bob Diener, Mark Childs, Ray Braseh Menasha—Shoepke, Schmitzer, Dizinski, Cramer, Drexler.

SKATING CHAMPS

The Appleton WPA recreational skating tournament was held yesterday afternoon at Pierce park with Don Hargadon, center in the upper picture, as the sensation of the meet.

He comes from Oconomowoc and is employed at the Wisconsin Telephone company here. Not only did he win the three senior mens events but his ease and grace on the ice made him a marked man. Hargadon finished second to Del Lamb, Olympic skater, in a downstate tournament last month. The others in the upper picture are Arvin Ristow, left, intermediate boys division champion, and Ralph Stojakovic, junior boys champion. In the lower picture, Evna Hoffman, recreation leader, is pinning a medal on Deloris Filz, winner in the girls events. (Post-Crescent Photos.)

Bits About Bowling

by Dick Davis

THE TWENTY-FOURTH annual Wisconsin Knights of Columbus Bowling association tournament got underway at Elks alleys Saturday afternoon and it's a credit to Appleton to have the large sporting event staged here. The tournament, with close to 300 entries, is second in size only to the state open. Some mighty good kegling will be done before competition closes March 17 and here's hoping many local residents will drop in at the alleys the coming weekends and watch the topnotch bowlers who will be coming from all parts of the state, at the same time showing material support for the tournament.

Delving into the 24-year history of the event, dating from 1917, we find that the highest team score is a 2,981, registered in 1935 by Beaumont Jack Getters, Green Bay. The top doubles score is a 1,293 count, tallied by T. Weinand and L. Weinand of West Bend in 1927. The biggest individual score was a 716 series by W. Cyrcman of Milwaukee in 1935. Another record was posted in 1935 when J. Kraus of Sheboygan took the all-events with a total of 1,947. The highest game ever registered was a 279 by Vic Oakley, Madison, in 1923.

H. Strutz, poking a 651 series in 1930 when the tourney was staged here, is the only Appleton representative on the roster of tourney winners. With the local boys on their home alleys, we're counting on them to bring home some of the 1940 bacon.

William "Billie" Fries, southpaw kegling veteran, could have robbed a bank but it's doubtful whether he could have caused as much of a stir as he did by dubbing A 97 GAME during the Elks Big Ten league match. No less than 15 of his "friends" made it a special point to tell us about it and, from the looks of things, he'll never hear the last of it. It seems he didn't get a clean-up until the final frame.

"Billie" is the target for a great deal of razzing and is getting so hot that he may reach the "bowling" point.

The value of checking scores, a point we have been meaning to bring up for a long time, was illustrated in the National City league at Y. M. C. A. alleys when Petersen Press was credited with winning a game from Odd Fellows by a count of 893 to 889. A check of the tally sheet revealed that a mistake had been made and Odd Fellows actually had won the game, 889 to 893.

Spits seem to hold little terror for Women's City league kegglers for they pulled some slick shots to wipe out several difficult setups at Arcade alleys.

Barbara Schell cleaned a 2-5-7-9. Ann Jones took care of a 5-7-9. Arlene Van Caster disposed of a 5-6-10. A. Kemtzer drilled a 6-10 and Mildred Simon cleaned up a 6-10 and a 5-7. Put a hen in that, fellow!

L. Shebilske buffed a 7-9 in the Y. M. C. A. American City league. In the last game between Zwicker Knitters and Cary Oil Burners of the National City circuit, there were six 7-10 splits. Cary kegglers got theirs by the first three men in the ninth frame.

Mayor John Goodland opened the K. of C. tournament with a strike... This heard there was some string-pulling involved... Chief of Police George T. Prim was over at the alleys earlier in the afternoon and he may have more detailed information...

Malcolm Buck certainly was "in the groove" during an Industrial league match at Arcade alleys when he collected three games of 177 each. William Newmann tolled two games of 150 and then "slipped" to a 149 while H. Deet hit a 178, 180 and another 178 in Zion Big Ten league matches.

On the other hand—we find Wilbur Strutz dribbling 177 and then smacking a 256. E. Getchow counting 120 and then passing 223. W. Plamann dubbling 113 and then topping 219. C. Clavert opened with a 215 and then slipped to 114. Mrs.

Because of the lack of snow, the dog derby scheduled at Pierce park was postponed.

Final Spurt Again Enables Fenske to Beat Cunningham

Boston — (U)—It could be youth conquering age or power overcoming finesse, but most students of track agreed today that Chuck Fenske's ability to prolong his terrific spurt for amazing distances has caused Glenn Cunningham's downfall as the world's premier indoor miler.

For the fourth time this season, the powerful Fenske defeated the old master in Saturday night's Hunter mile with a 4:11.2 performance.

To do it, the Wisconsin star cut loose with a blistering 587 final quarter, which swept him home five yards ahead of California's Lou Zamperini and eight in front of Cunningham.

Most of the spectators bemoaned the fact that for many laps Fenske was content to run third, with Cunningham at his heels, as Gene Venzke set a comfortable 3:12.5 pace for first three quarters. If either had forced matters earlier, Boston's 4:10, record might have been wiped out.

Despite Fenske's decisive triumph in the meet's outstanding feature, he received scant consideration from the track writers when they met yesterday to award the John J. Hallahan trophy.

It was voted to John Bolton, the Elberon, N. J. Negro star, whose 2:12 win over Olympic champion Johnny Woodruff in the Lapham "1,000" was rated the night's outstanding performance.

Injured Boxer Leaves Pittsburgh Hospital

Pittsburgh — (U)—Jimmy Lindsay, young boxer who suffered a brain injury during a training bout with light heavyweight champion Billy Conn last December, has left a local hospital to convalesce at his home here.

Physicians said Lindsay has not fully recovered. He underwent two operations to remove a blood clot from his brain.

Pittsburgh boxing fans contributed $400 to help defray his hospital expenses.

Comets, Zephyrs, Roths Winners in Older Boy Circuit

Latter Defeats Titans in Bitterly Fought Contest, 34 - 19

SATURDAY'S SCORES

Roth 34, Titans 19.
Comets 35, Delta 23.
Zephyrs 26, Staggs 11.

ROTH Hi-Y defeated the Titans in the American division of the Older Boys league Saturday, 34 and 19. The game was bitterly fought and the youngsters once were on the verge of resorting to punches.

The Titans had only four players but they fought hard and heaved shots from all over the floor. Roths led 8 to 5 at the quarter, 16 to 9 at the half and 26 to 14 at the third quarter. Bleick got 16 points and Barlow 12 for the winners. Schmid got nine points for the losers.

Comets downed Delta Hi-Y by a 35 to 23 verdict. The winners led 9 to 3, 16 to 9 and 23 to 17. The play of the Deitas featured Larson, a guard, who got six points. Marston led the team's scoring with eight points. For the Comets, Nickach had nine points and Berger eight.

Zephyrs used only four boys to defeat the Staggs, 26 to 11. The game was close until the second half when the Zephyrs pulled away. The winners led 5 to 3 at the quarter, 7 to 5 at the half and 19 to 9 at the third quarter. R. Dickinson had 11 points for the winners and Balleit 6 for the losers.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

HEALTH DANGER
Sunshine, bright sunshine! It can do ever so much to keep people healthy. Too much of it at one time may burn the skin, but most persons do not have enough. Certain short rays in sunshine are known as "ultra-violet rays." When they shine on a human being, they help his skin to make a certain amount of Vitamin D. In old days of outdoor life, many persons were able to obtain enough Vitamin D through sunshine.

A hatful of chicks in the sunshine. If people do not have enough Vitamin D, they suffer from a bone disease known as "rickets." Most victims of this trouble have been babies, and often they have carried the results through life—bow-legs, knock-knees, weak limbs and so on. The importance of sunshine has been brought out in records of Europe's health. In general, the people of the northern half of Europe have suffered more than those in the southern half. This has been due to the fact that northern Europe has less sunshine. The growth of cities has done much to block out sunshine. This comes about not only from tall buildings but also from smoke which hangs over cities with thousands of chimneys. Smoke from soft coal can be an enemy of health. The taking of cod liver oil seems to have gone on in some parts of the Norse countries for hundreds of years. Being largely fisher folk, the Norsemen no doubt were simply making use of the oil in codfish which they caught. Yet it did them good, and took away much of the bad effect of not having enough sunshine. In 1909 a doctor in St. Petersburg (now Leningrad) started treating a four-year-old child who could not walk. Because of rickets, this child had lost his power of walking at the age of 18 months. The doctor gave the child cod liver oil each day for two months. At the end of that time, the little one was able to run around quite freely. That case, and others like it, led to widespread use of cod liver oil. Though no one knew the reason the oil took the place of sunshine in the work of bringing about strong, healthy bones. Cod liver oil is in use to this day, but a great discovery has given the human race a new and easier way of obtaining Vitamin D. Tomorrow we shall go into the story of that discovery. Title Chances of High School Cage Squad Talk of the Town

New London — Speculation on New London's chances of winning its first Northeastern Wisconsin conference basketball title in the history of the high school is the main topic of conversation among the sports followers this week, following the Red and White's overtime victory over Shawano here Friday.

The next two weeks' play will settle the question. In reward for Friday's effort and in lieu of another game at West DePere tomorrow night, Coach Harold Isaacson has canceled the squad's regular practice for tonight.

If Shawano beats Neenah on the Indians' home floor tomorrow night, and the dopesters say they can, although Neenah beat the Indians by 31 to 20 in their first meeting, the Red and White will be in lost possession of first place with the other two rivals tied for second; that is, provided the Bulldogs come through over West DePere. The Indians have Rosenow back for one thing. He was the lad who beat New London at Shawano and despite his recent arm injury was plenty troublesome here Friday night.

However, after Shawano Neenah will be all through with the tough ones and can count its meeting with Clintonville as another victory, whereas both Shawano and New London still must meet Kaukauna on the Kaws floor which may upset either's chances. To make the odds still worse, the Red and White also must eliminate Menasha here this Friday night. If they can win both they will have the crown or can at least tie Neenah for the championship if the Rockets beat Shawano. In any case the locals will run a close second.

The outcome will be easier to calculate after this week's double schedule is over.

300 are Present at 18th Anniversary of Church's Dedication

New London — About 300 persons were served by the Ladies Aid society of the Emanuel Lutheran church Sunday noon on the eighteenth anniversary of the dedication of the church building. Proceeds will go to the school building fund.

Mr. and Mrs. John Worm entertained their ice harvesting crew at a party at their home Thursday evening in celebration of the completion of the work. About 35 were present. Schafkopf was played and prizes went to Mrs. Wilbur Jeffers and Mrs. August Otto. Cloys Redemacher and August Otto.

The Congregational Men's club will meet Wednesday evening at the home of George Schlegel with C. C. Seims assisting.

The women's Stay-at-Home club will spend the evening at the home of Mrs. E. W. Wendland.

It Is Said--

That Ray Smith and Roland Rosenberger, two young night-shift employees at the American Plywood factory, New London, passed up their lunch hour at 9 o'clock Friday night to run up to the Washington High school gym to see how the Shawano-New London basketball game would end. They saw the last quarter but had to rush back to work at 9:30 before the overtime started and they and fellow workers had to wait until midnight to find out how the tie game came out.

Lana Turner rules the romance for 1940 as Queen of Hearts. The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer starlet dons red satin suit, and crown of jewels to defy Cupid for the throne of hearts.

By Jimmie Fidler

Hollywood — I'm a bit punch-drunk this a.m. from trying to reconcile two publicity dispatches from the same studio.

Item No. 2 is a glowing forecast of box office prospects on "Gone With the Wind." It contends that that ultra-expensive picture will knock financial records for a loop, largely because so many people have read the book.

The movie moguls declare that these millions will recognize the title and will rush to buy tickets. Perhaps they are correct.

But consider, if you please, press agent Item No. 2. The same studio has decided to give a new title to a picture made from McKinlay Kantor's "widely-read" Saturday Evening Post story, "Arouse and Beware." It will be released as "The Man from Dakota."

I don't get it. "Arouse and Beware," having been published by a magazine with about 2,000,000 circulation, must have been read by at least one-third as many people as readers. The cocky little sparrow that bosses our back yard reminds me of Mickey Rooney. No wonder so many of "Rhett" Gable's speeches in "Gone With the Wind" are ear-onic. Candidate for the best conversationalist award: Glenda Farrell. Wonder if anyone has thought to call Donald Duck flap-happy? The man who started that libel about the English lacking a sense of humor should have heard Alan Mowbray on a joke spree. Today's observation: you can't hold a candle to most Hollywood scenarios—and that's really too bad.

Odd-Formation. Truly homicidal is Lynn Bari's screen record—with 24 roles to her credit. It's been a murderess in 14 of them. And strange coincidences: the fact that both Ann Shirley and John Garfield, who portray expectant parents in Saturday's "Children," announced real-life dates with Doc Stork during the picture's production. Don't try to sell Zorina your belief that screen acting is easy work—in "I Was an Adventuress," she averaged 131 hours of set-toil per day for six straight weeks.

Credit Groucho Marx with one of the week's better don't mottos. Dining in a fashionable nite spot, he watched patrons dancing the Conga—certainly the most barbaric staidism that ever set Hollywood bodies into contortions. "What do you think of it?" asked the cafe proprietor. "I think," said Groucho dryly, "you ought to trade your head-water in on a good missionary."

Miss Julia Hutchinson Feted on 80th Birthday

Waupaca — Miss Julia Hutchinson, active in temperance work for over fifty years, celebrated her eightieth birthday, Feb. 11. On Saturday she was entertained at a 1 o'clock luncheon at the home of Mrs. Charles Button, at which there were more than twenty members of the local W. C. T. U. to share in the celebration. The gathering was a surprise to Miss Hutchinson, and Mrs. Button was assisted by Mrs. R. E. Deuel, Mrs. Edmund Johnson and Mrs. James Jorgensen.

For years Miss Hutchinson has been, and still is, the editor of The Motor, official state paper for the woman's Christian Temperance Union. The paper, published monthly, is compiled and printed in Waupaca.

Kaukauna Merchant Cage Squad Defeats Stockbridge, 33 to 29

Kaukauna — Kaukauna Merchants, city basketball league leaders, defeated Stockbridge last night on the enemy's court, 33 to 29, in a tight battle in which the lead changed hands time and again. Art Koehn topped the Kaukauna team with 11 points, with Shoemaker garnering 11 for Stockbridge.

Kaukauna Squad Will Perform at Menasha Tuesday

Krumm's Cagers Face Two Decisive League Games This Week

Kaukauna — Riding on the crest of a 4-game winning streak, then longer of the season, Coach Guy Krumm's cagers will begin the first of three decisive league games tomorrow night at Menasha, meeting the Menasha Bluejays. Earlier this season the Bluejays visited Kaukauna and left on the useless end of a 35 to 18 score.

Friday night the Kaws will be hosts to Shawano, and next week to New London, in two contests which, if Kaukauna defeats Menasha, will have much to do in deciding this year's champion. On enemy floors Kaukauna dropped earlier games, 35 to 28 at Shawano and 34 to 31 at New London, the latter in two overtime contests.

Kaukauna is now in fourth place in the Northeastern conference, with six wins and three losses. Neenah and New London, each of whom has lost only two games, have the best chance for the title. Three wins for the Kaws, plus a defeat of Neenah by Shawano, will put Krumm's men into a 3-way tie for the top. The Indians will have a good chance to upset the Rockets on the Shawano floor.

Bluejays Are Fast
Menasha has a 4 and 5 record in the conference, but showed power in overwhelming Clintonville Friday night, 49 to 27. The Bluejays, 1 have one of the fastest teams in the loop and when on will give any team trouble. Kaukauna's first win was due principally to the running up of a 17 to 2 lead, with Menasha holding the Kaws even in the second half.

Bill Alger, star pivot man, rang up 11 points against St. Mary's to send his season's total to 126. Following Alger in the scoring column are Karl Gordana, 88, Joe Bloch, 80, Don Bisek, 74, Junior Swedberg, 51, Bill Tesson, 17, Willis Rantquette, 5, Calvin Spice 1, and Byron Befort, 1. The Kaws have totaled 443, an average of 30 a game, to opponents' 355.

Taft, Vandenberg Gain in GOP Popularity; Dewey Loses but Holds Lead With Rank-and-File

BY DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion
Princeton, N. J.—With the first Republican Presidential primaries only a few weeks away, the latest nation-wide survey of the American Institute of Public Opinion shows further shifts and changes in the popularity of leading Republican candidates—and new indications that rank-and-file Republican opinion has not yet reached a final crystallization.

Dr. Gallup, District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey continues to lead all other Republican eligibles in the Institute's survey, but his popular vote recedes somewhat from the high point reached a month ago. At that time, shortly after Mr. Dewey's formal entrance into the 1940 race with speeches at New York and Minneapolis, the Institute found 60 per cent of those who were interviewed, and who had definite opinions, in favor of the New York prosecutor. In the current survey his vote slides to 56 per cent.

Both Senator Vandenberg and Senator Taft, on the other hand, have increased their standings with the votes in the past month. The largest increase occurs in the case of Senator Taft, who has been speaking widely and frequently throughout the country. Whereas Mr. Taft polled 11 per cent of the GOP preference vote in January, he receives 17 per cent today.

Until his speech at St. Paul last night, Senator Vandenberg has shown relatively little activity with regard to the 1940 nomination. In the past month, however, the Michigan senator has held his position well, receiving 17 per cent of the preference vote today as compared with 16 per cent in January. Vandenberg's strength is also attested by the fact that for a period of 22 months—from January, 1937, to November, 1938—he led all other Republican eligibles in Presidential support in Institute tests. As with Senator Taft, the indications are that active campaigning on Vandenberg's part would increase his following.

Another significant development of the past month, the survey shows, is the appearance of Publisher Frank Gannett of Rochester on the list of leading candidates, following the formal announcement of his candidacy.

In the Institute's survey a carefully selected cross-section of Republican voters, representing the 17 million voters who cast their ballots for London in 1936 and those who favor a Republican victory in November, were asked: "Whom would you like to see elected President this year?" The following table shows the replies of persons with opinions on the question, with last month's vote for comparison:

TODAY	MONTH AGO
1. Dewey	36%
2. Vandenberg	17
3. Taft	17
4. Hoover	13
5. Gannett	1
All Others	6
1. Dewey	60%
2. Vandenberg	16
3. Taft	11
4. Hoover	5
5. James	1

7. Bricker	1
8. Borah	1
9. Landon	1

36% Still Undecided
Another important factor in the popularity picture today is the fact that more than a third of the Republicans interviewed (36%) said they had not yet made up their minds who their first choice would be. This number has been diminishing steadily for several months, but it indicates that the nomination race is still in flux so far as the rank-and-file of the party are concerned. A similar bloc of undecided votes exists within the Democratic party at this time. Institute surveys show.

If the undecided votes are included in the above tabulations, the voting is as follows:
